Is Health A Public Utility?

By G. E. MORTIMORE
Third of a Series

CANADIANS pay roughly $1,500,000,000 a year for personal and public health.

Some of this expense is shared among the taxpayers. The federal government pays doctors' and hospital bills for most Indians, for soldiers, sailors and airmen, and for some veterans.

Health programs differ from province to province. In British Columbia, numerous hard-up people, including needy pensioners who qualify under means tests, have their bills for medicines and treatment paid out of tax money. Public health measures like sanitary inspection, and immunization are tax-financed, the burden being divided among federal, provincial and local governments.

Bills Paid

Most Canadians now have their hospital bills paid (except for small co-insurance charges) from the treasure chests of the provincial and federal governments, to which citizens contribute in premiums and taxes.

Saskatchewan and B.C. began hospital insurance; now all provinces have it.

But millions of people pay for doctors and medicines without any direct help. Some of them are protected by commercial health insurance or by non-profit medical insurance. (Seventy-five per cent of British Columbians, 54 per cent of all Canadians, have some kind of prepaid medical care.)

Cost Shared?

Others, who can not or will not get health insurance, are burdened with medical expenses for years.

Should the cost of all medical services be shared, as hospital expenses are? Who should pay the doctor, and how should the payments be made? These simple questions lead to others which are not so simple. Is health a commodity like bread or apples, which you buy in the market and pay for from your own bank roll? Or is health a public utility like roads and schools, to be financed from taxes? Or is it a mixture of both?

All Benefit

The government of Great Britain maintains that health is a public utility or a public right. All citizens, and most visitors to the country, receive medical, nursing and hospital care, dentistry, drugs and glasses through the National Health Service.

These benefits are not "free," but are paid for out of the general revenue, to which all taxpayers contribute. There are small charges for prescriptions (about 40 cents) and for glasses and false teeth, to discourage over-use.

Canada and the United States, until recently, have looked upon personal health care chiefly as something which citizens had to pay for on their own.

Canada Moves

"Canada and the United States are the only two countries in the 'civilized' world which do not have some form of government-assisted health care for all the people," said Dr. John F. McCrory, dean of the University of British Columbia medical school, in a recent speech.

Canada last year started nationwide hospital insurance and began to move toward paying at least part of everybody's medical bills with tax money. Saskatchewan, the first province to launch hospital insurance, has framed a medical insurance law but the doctors oppose its terms. In B.C., a 1936 health insurance law failed when doctors refused to work it.

The United States has many voluntary groups for sharing hospital and medical expenses, but no nationwide hospital or health plan.

All political parties in Canada say they want some kind of health insurance. Medical

U.S. Envoy Shot Dead In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (CP)—Lt. Col. Hulen Stogner, assistant military attache at the United States embassy here, was shot and killed at his home last night by a Congolese.

Troops encircled the residential section of Leopoldville where Stogner lived. A Congolese worker was seized for questioning.

Castro Star Dimmed?

HAVANA (UPI)—Communist leader Carlos Rafael Rodriguez yesterday replaced Premier Fidel Castro as president of the all-powerful Cuban Agrarian Reform Institute.

Although the change was announced without fanfare by the cabinet in a brief statement published in the official press, it created a sensation.

Much of Castro's power has stemmed from the embracing authority vested in him as head of the institute.

One of the top five in the Communist hierarchy, in Cuba, Rodriguez has been an openly avowed Communist since the middle 1930s.

Cuba was formally ousted from the Organization of American States yesterday. The expulsion was originally ordered by the American foreign ministers at Punta del Este, Uruguay.

Varsity Budget Cut Could Be Crippling

A $330,000 cut in the requested 1962 operating budget for Victoria University may prove crippling during the crucial early stages of expansion on the Gordon Head campus, the Colonist learned yesterday.

Principal Dr. W. H. Hickman said the resulting lack of funds will force cancellation of several new academic courses as well as a decision not to hire additional faculty members and purchase new equipment.

Victoria University Council, following a meeting this week, expressed "grave concern" over the budget cuts made by the provincial government.

Flu Wave Lays Low 10,000

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Schools were closed and more than 10,000 people, young and old, sniffled, sneezed, coughed or stayed abed Wednesday as the influenza epidemic strengthened its grip in this area.

Throughout this area some 62 elementary and high schools were closed. About one-third of the population of 37,000 here has been hit by the virus.

'Landlords Grab Pension Boost'

NANAIMO (CP)—President Joe Sutton of Nanaimo Old Age Pensioners Association said Wednesday he is wiring a protest to Prime Minister Diefenbaker over home rental increases that followed in the wake of Ottawa's announcement of old age pension hikes.

Red Jets Sweep Air Lane

BERLIN (Reuters)—Soviet fighters swept near Allied planes in Berlin's vital air corridors Wednesday after Russia failed again to win Western agreement to block off part of the lanes for Soviet military flights.

One of the planes involved was a light RAF transport aircraft carrying Sir Christopher Steel, Britain's ambassador to West Germany.

Wednesday marked the fourth time in a week the Soviet controller at the Berlin air safety centre had informed the three Western controllers he wanted to reserve space in the air corridors below certain heights and between certain times for Soviet military flights. Each request was rejected.

The captain of a Pan American airliner flying to Berlin said he saw a Soviet jet fighter close behind a British European Airways Viscount, which was going in the opposite direction. The British captain said later he had not noticed the jet.

Bonner, Fulton To Meet

Power problems and Douthett's affair head the list of topics to be discussed in Ottawa Friday between Attorney-General Robert Bonner and Justice Minister Davis Fulton.

Premier Bennett advised the legislature yesterday that Mr. Bonner had gone East to discuss the Douthett problem following the wave of terrorism in the Kootenays.

But observers believe that the long-simmering Ottawa-B.C. fight over power development in the province will be uppermost in the minds of the two legal officials.

The federal and provincial authorities have not had a face-to-face meeting on the power issue since May of last year.

They're Reliving History

Extra Road To Ferries Demanded

A second Patricia Bay Highway for through traffic to the B.C. government ferry terminal at Swartz Bay was called for yesterday by John Tisdale (S.C.—Saanch).

The present highway, he added, should be used by "domestic" traffic to and from points along the road while the new through-road could perhaps run parallel to it.

FASTER TRAVEL

"I hope the minister of highways will view with urgency something along these lines," stated Mr. Tisdale, speaking in the budget debate. "The new highway could perhaps tie into the Blanshard Street extension."

Such a through highway, he said, would allow traffic going to and coming from the ferry terminal to travel quickly.

ONLY TWO

The member was critical of the fact that the Patricia Bay Highway relocation—which was made necessary by extension of airport runways—was two lanes only.

"It should have been four," he said. "No one can pass the buses and trucks coming off the ferries once they get on the road. Four lanes would allow a passing lane on either side of the road. I trust the minister will facilitate this at the earliest convenience."

Grim Vendetta In Algeria Takes Big Toll

Bloody Riots Follow Explosions

ORAN, Algeria (Reuters)—At least 33 persons were killed and 86 injured in Algeria Wednesday as the blood-soaked territory suffered through one of the most violent days of the year.

The death toll was the highest in Algeria since Jan. 3, when 38 were killed.

ORAN ROCKED

Communal violence raged through the streets of Oran and Algiers, Algeria's two chief cities, with the Moslem and European communities locked in a bloody vendetta.

Forty-four plastic bomb explosions rocked the Moslem quarter of Oran and sparked a chain of terror that claimed at least 23 lives.

HOUSES LEVELLED

The explosions boomed through the Moslem suburb of Lamur as dawn broke, leveling newly-built small houses and setting fires that blazed uncontrolled through the day.

Rioting Moslems forced back policemen and firemen attempting to deal with the damage and poured into the European quarters, sacking and burning stores and stealing cars.

GENERAL'S SON DEAD

Nine rioters died and eight were wounded in one clash with French security forces during which a French army lieutenant was killed.

He was Lieut. Philippe Jacquot, son of Gen. Pierre Jacquot, commander-in-chief of NATO allied forces for central Europe.

The blasts were attributed to the European Secret Army Organization which bitterly opposes plans for an independent Algeria.

BULLETS SPRAYED

In Algiers, an outbreak of Moslem-European terror was touched off when a car drove at high speed through one of the main streets of the Belcourt suburb, spraying machine-gun bullets from a window.

The attack was followed by the murder of two Europeans in Belcourt, a mixed Moslem-European suburb. The Europeans were shot by a Moslem gunman.

MOSLEMS ATTACKED

Word of the murder brought Europeans pouring from their houses.

They rampaged through the streets, attacking Moslems indiscriminately.

The demonstrations took place as an Algeria-wide strike of European electricity and gas workers hit France's North African territory. The strike marked the funeral in Algiers of a utility worker killed by a Moslem gunman Monday.

Nikita Told:

Summit Depends On Talks

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan told Soviet Premier Khrushchev Wednesday they will be willing to meet him at Geneva after the disarmament conference makes some progress.

Their messages, delivered in Moscow by the American and British ambassadors, brought to the verge of certainty the prospect of a summit meeting by the Big Three—and perhaps other heads of government—within the next few months.

TURNED DOWN

Strictly speaking, the Kennedy-Macmillan reply was a turnaround of Khrushchev's Feb. 10 proposal that government heads themselves attend at the start of the 18-nation general disarmament conference opening in Geneva March 14.

In Moscow, diplomatic quarters expected Khrushchev to attend the conference opening despite the Kennedy-Macmillan turnaround.

BEST WAY

The Western chiefs stuck to their original call for a Geneva conference launching by their foreign ministers as the best way to make progress on preliminary details.

But having made this point, Macmillan said, "I am not so much concerned with routine procedures and arguments as with results."

Kennedy said: "I do not mean to question the utility or perhaps even the necessity of a meeting of heads of government."

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the House of Commons yesterday that a reply has been prepared to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's call for a heads-of-government disarmament conference in Geneva next month. Mr. Diefenbaker was expected to join President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Macmillan in rejecting the Soviet leader's call.

Astronaut Still Waits

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP)—The United States called off its ninth scheduled attempt to launch astronaut John Glenn into orbit today for fear he would be lost in the storm-tossed Atlantic. The 10th attempt was set for Friday.

Now Russians Try To Out-Do Scots

LONDON (Reuters)—The Soviet Union laid claim Wednesday to not one but two "Loch Ness monsters."

Moscow radio said the first monster was seen by Soviet geologists in a lake 3,500 feet above sea level in eastern Siberia.

They claimed the monster had a head more than six feet in size and a 30-foot-long body that had something like a fin on it.

The second monster was said to have been seen by a party of geographers in a lake in the mountains on the border of Soviet Central Asia and China.

Looking like a log moving through the water "very rapidly," the scientists said the part above the water seemed to have a tail.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

My friend Jim is irked because the law won't let him take his wife into a beer parlor. She's under 21. She has a baby, but that doesn't make any difference. She can't carry the baby in with her. He's a minor, too. The waiter would throw both of them out.

"Your fault for taking a child bride," I said. "But how could you change the law so it would be more reasonable? Let minors in as long as they were married?"

"Then a lot of them would be rushing to get hitched in past 7.30."

Done in a Hurry

Victoria is still fussing and sputtering about plans for a public parking building, but the company wants permission to sweep away stones and curbings, plant grass and put down markers flush with the turf.

Some of the people whose relations are buried there don't want any part of the plan.

In addition, some of them are going to tell the commission about attempts that were made to get money from them to pay for the demolition and reconstruction work — work which they didn't want done.

No doubt the flush-marker burial parks are tidy and modern. But would Gray have written his elegy in Stoke Poges Memorial Garden of Perpetual Care?

'Varsity Cut

The education minister said new federal grants to the university round out what he termed "quite a substantial lift."

The University Council's statement, however, pointed out that the recently announced federal grants which at first might appear "heavenly" amounts to approximately $100,000 and will not be available until February, 1963.

Referring to cuts in the budget Mr. Peterson said: "As with all departments we have to cut the suit according to the cloth available. I'm sure (Victoria University) will be along very well with this substantial increase at a time when revenues are not as bountiful as they have been in the past."

Don't Blame Cheese For Constipation

By JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Should a person who occasionally gets constipated refrain from eating cheese (cream or cottage excepted) and not drink milk? What should one not eat? What is good to help a natural daily movement? Do you approve of milk of magnesia once in a while?—A. S.

The widely repeated theory that cheese causes constipation is just as wrong as the equally popular rumor that it will cure diarrhea. The latter, however, is a dearly-loved fable in the army. It is my belief that those who manage to beg a hunk of cheese from the mess sergeant recover no more quickly—and no more slowly—than those who don't.

BULK A FACTOR

Constipation is not a matter of refraining from eating any particular foods. There is no food that causes constipation.

Rather, it is caused by what one does not eat. Not eating regularly or not eating enough—as so often is the case with an invitation to constipation. Not eating foods with sufficient bulk is another. Whole fruits and vegetables are quite rich in bulk and are the best source of it. Such things as bran are bulk also, but may be irritating if used in excess.

Most people with constipation are poor water drinkers. Liquid and bulk, or bulk and liquid, are the best of all possible answers to constipation.

In addition, regularity of habit is of no small importance. As to milk of magnesia, if (as is understandable) one occasionally gets into a bit of trouble, it is very helpful. But remember that I said "occasionally."

Dear Doctor: If a baby's running nose isn't caused by teeth-coming, what would you suggest?—Mrs. P. M.

Teething is blamed for a lot of things because it's such a handy excuse. True, it can make a child drooly and fretful. But a runny nose is more likely due to a cold or an allergy.

Dear Dr. Molner: During my early teens something strange happened to my voice. Until then I had a coloratura soprano with a wide voice range. Then, after a series of sore throats, my voice changed, and now it will break on certain notes. —J. K.

A "series of sore throats" could have caused some scarring of the vocal cords. Further, it's well to remember that some young women develop a somewhat deeper voice after adolescence, the same as boys do, except not so much. Have a specialist check the throat.

'Fascist Move' To Interfere With CBC

OTTAWA (UPI)—Revenue Minister George Nowlan, in a statement that brought a critical response from some government supporters yesterday denounced suggestions that the government should interfere in the program operations of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Nowlan, asked by a Conservative backbencher to seek the removal of a specific program from the CBC's television schedule, told the Commons such interference could start Canada toward "a Fascist or Communist state."

"Once the government or any political party begins to interfere with the program policies of the CBC, you have created that kind of situation," he said.

RUMBLINGS HEARD
The statement drew applause from members of all three parties in the House, but there were noticeable rumblings of discontent from some sections of the Conservative benches.

While rejecting any move toward government interference in CBC programming, Nowlan was critical of some aspects of the publicly-owned corporation's internal operations.

"DISTURBED"
He said he was "disturbed" over the number of letters he himself had received over CBC programs. And he accused CBC officials in Toronto, where many of the programs originate, of hiding public comments from senior corporation officials in Ottawa.

SEND THEM DIRECT
"It seems to me that these people in Toronto just send a polite acknowledgment and then throw the protest letter in the waste basket," Nowlan said. "I'd suggest that anyone wishing to comment on CBC programs should send their letters directly to the senior officials here such as Mr. Oulmet." (J. Alphonse Oulmet is president of the CBC.)

Health a Utility?

care may be a big issue in Canada's next general election—but the debate will not be between people who are for health insurance and people who are against it. The debate will be about the KIND of prepaid health care that Canada is to have—and how soon it will be brought into effect.

Fight Is On

A three-cornered struggle is under way, in which the rival factions are the people who want a government-run plan, roughly similar to Britain's, those who favor privately-administered plans and those in the middle who want a mixture of both.

The Liberals favor a centrally co-ordinated health plan that would cover doctor's bills and drugs and would be paid for partly from general revenue, partly by each citizen at income tax time, according to his income, wealth and the amount of medical care he received. Poor people would make no direct payment.

No Extra Burden
The New Democratic Party favors a comprehensive plan to cover all medical costs for every citizen. New Democratic leader J. C. Douglas in a television speech last night urged a health plan in which the federal government would pay 60 per cent of the cost.

He said the rest of the cost could be paid by the provinces through a redistribution of existing medical plan burdens, with "no additional burden" on the taxpayer.

Differences
In earlier statements, Mr. Douglas has suggested that such a plan could be financed partly through taxes — the system that worked for hospital insurance in Saskatchewan and is proposed for the Saskatchewan health care law that Mr. Douglas framed while he was premier of Saskatchewan, a law which has not yet been translated into action.

However, there are regional differences within the NDP. B.C. leader Robert Stanbury has indicated publicly that he frowns on the premium plan, which proved unworkable in the B.C. hospital insurance system.

Shiny Bait

Conservatives, having launched the royal commission on health services to study alternative plans, are probably ready to be lured by the commission's findings and to share costs with each province according to the health system that the province chooses. Meanwhile the prospect of health insurance is shiny bait.

Refugees Tell Grim Story

Hungry Chinese Flee for Food

Reds Suffer Crippling Setbacks

By MICHAEL MACLEAR
MACAO (TNS)—An immense human tragedy is occurring in Communist China.

Vast segments of the 670,000,000 population live on a handful of rice—and nothing more.

Health, education, agriculture, industry—in effect the whole Communist system—has suffered crippling setbacks.

The facts confirming China's plight are now being disclosed by the Chinese themselves—by refugees escaping to the mainland enclave of Macao.

Rumors Heard

For more than a year the outside world has heard rumors and unconfirmed reports of trouble in China. But there have been no easily verifiable facts, no first-hand accounts.

The comments of the Chinese pouring into this Portuguese colony are therefore the only factual reports on the current condition of one quarter of humanity—and on the West's most entrenched ideological opponent.

And the comments are sometimes startling.

"If possible," said Ywaycam Lei, and he held thankfully to his nine-year-old son, "it is possible 80 out of every hundred would get out of China."

Lei and his son had escaped a few hours earlier—two among a daily average of 200 refugees who in recent weeks have found their way to Macao's one mission, the Cassa Ricci.

Seeing them, hearing of their hardships as they crowd into the mission, it is apparent that these refugees are different to the half-million of their brethren who came to Macao over the past decade.

Guards Bribed

This latest exodus seems spurred by the basic instinct for survival. These refugees are being driven out by unbearable hunger.

They take incredible chances. Lei and his son swam the 500-yard straits that separates Macao from the mainland.

Others bribe the Communist guards and put out in open boats, or risk the bullets of guards who can't be bribed.

At the Cassa Ricci mission they come under the care of Father Luiz Ruiz, a Portuguese missionary who spent 15 years in China. A typical day found him ministering to several hundred destitute Chinese.

Crave Food

The newly arrived refugees, separated from the earlier arrivals, stood out. All were barefooted, all wore the same medium blue, half ragged tunics and trousers that are the uniform of the communes. All were noticeably silent.

"All of them," said Father Ruiz, "have one thing in common—hunger. They come here with a craving for food."

"Six thousand came in December, and about the same the month before—that's when it really began, and I've asked them all: why did they leave China."

"Every one of them said the same. They had nothing to eat."

The trouble seems to have developed since late 1959—ironically, the start of the communes and "the great leap forward." The Communists blame natural disasters—two years of floods and crop failure.

But floods and famine are historically endemic in China—and, in fact, in 1959 the Communists publicly claimed to have mastered the problem.

One outside source estimates that China must now increase overall production 25% to reach the level of two years ago—a seemingly impossible task.

A possible solution for China would be massive Soviet aid. But this is only likely if moderate leadership prevails in Peking and, at the moment, the Sino-Soviet dialectical rift is widening.

Price of Peace?

However, there is the possibility that a further hardening of Chinese policy—more adventures like Laos and Vietnam—might blackmail the Russians into giving assistance as the price of peace.

For China, the present social troubles may thus lead to a crisis in party leadership, for better or worse. For the outside world, the immediate problem is a humanitarian one—with the built-in value of sustaining life where the Communists have failed.

But so far there has been no organized world relief—in Macao or Hong Kong.

"If the refugees keep coming," says the priest, "then we, like the Communists, will be unable to feed them. We also will have failed."

Next U.S. Test Area?

Ancient Temples Moved in Egypt

CAIRO (UPI)—Three ancient Egyptian temples have been removed from the Nubian stretch of the Nile Valley to prevent their submergence in backwaters of the Aswan high dam, the Egyptian antiquities department announced.

Construction of the dam is expected to be completed in 1968. Twenty-three temples in all are earmarked for removal.

3,000,000 in U.S. Can't Read or Write

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Almost 3,000,000 American adults cannot read the label on a medicine bottle, a help wanted ad in the newspaper or the report cards children bring home from school.

This was the key statistic presented yesterday as the Kennedy administration launched its drive in Congress for a program to combat adult illiteracy. It was presented to a special House education subcommittee by Wilbur Cohen, assistant secretary of health, education and welfare.

Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg, also testifying in support of the program, said there were 8,000,000 men and women over 25 who have not gone beyond the fifth grade. "The time has long passed, when we can afford, either in human terms or in terms of economic health and prestige of our nation, to permit this condition to continue," he said.

Goldberg called on the subcommittee and congress to approve the five-year $50,000,000 program designed to encourage states to establish basic adult education courses.

Cohen earlier told the subcommittee the most serious problem facing the nation was the close to 3,000,000 persons who are unable to read or write.

Banker's Evidence

Pair Accused

CHICAGO (UPI)—A Swiss banker testified yesterday that two men charged in connection with history's biggest bank burglary tried to open large accounts with Canadian banks.

OPENED ACCOUNT

Dr. Joseph Frei of the Banc Leu of Basel, Switzerland, said one of the accused men, Chicago promoter William Rabin, 54, opened a $16,000 account in October, 1958, with Canadian bonds as security. The bonds were later sold by the bank and Swiss francs were deposited in Rabin's account, Frei said.

The government charges in its federal district court trial that the bonds were part of the $11,000,000 loot stolen from the Brookville, Ont., Trust and Savings Bank in May, 1958. Rabin and three other men are accused of conspiring to dispose of part of the loot through a series of front organizations and accounts in European banks.

FELL THROUGH

Frei testified that another of the defendants, Washington lawyer George Roden, tried to set up an account with $160,000 worth of Canadian bonds in October, 1958. The deal fell through, Frei said, when Roden objected to checking the bonds with the Canadian government.

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Hundreds of Royal Laotian army paratroops were reported yesterday to have been dropped into Nam Tha to bolster the defenders of the northwestern provincial capital against besieging pro-Communist troops.

Reliable sources said C-47 transports carried more than 200 troops to the beleaguered town in an operation that began Tuesday and continued yesterday.

The troop reinforcements were reported dropped at the western end of the Nam Tha valley after mortar fire from pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels damaged the Nam Tha airstrip.

The sources reported no new infantry clashes along the main defence line at Nam Tha during the past two days.

The Acrobats

IT IS INTERESTING to note how the Liberals in B.C. are trimming their sails for this year's federal election. With an agility that an acrobat might envy, and without compunction, they are turning somersaults on the Columbia power question.

Both the chief VIP of the national Liberal organization, the campaign chairman, and a Liberal senator are currently treating B.C. to a complete reversal of the previous party stand.

Until now the Liberal fire has been turned against the provincial Social Credit government, supporting by inference and stated opinion the Diefenbaker regime in its controversy about the export of power. Now like a revelation it has come upon them they were backing into an election corner.

With fresh colored glasses they affect to discover that the treaty needs revision; contradictorily, also, that Ottawa could have ratified it before this; and generally that the federal government is to blame.

They are obviously confused, nevertheless, at least on one main point. Chairman Gordon says that excepting Justice Minister Fulton he has never heard anyone say the treaty was a good deal. In fact both sides to the current Columbia dispute aver that the treaty is a good one. Mr. Bonner repeated this view only the other day, and both the Social and Diefenbaker governments are on record as being satisfied with the treaty as such. So are the Americans, the other party to the treaty.

It is only on the question of power export that difficulty has arisen, not the treaty itself.

But a federal election is in the offing and the Liberals realize that in B.C. they must change their tune. They have backed the Ottawa stand against the Socials because they are adamantly opposed to the Bennett regime, per se. But a federal election presents a different kettle of fish.

Since federally they hope to eject the Diefenbaker government obviously they must switch sides. They are even pushing the "historic national power policy" about which they talked so much—in support of Ottawa's objections to export of power—into the background. And this "historic" policy was of Liberal making.

But historic policies count for nothing if in B.C. at least—no doubt another picture is painted elsewhere in Canada—they are backing a losing cause. Hence the somersault.

It is all very interesting, and a fine example of political expediency, which, incidentally, is not likely to go unnoticed by the federal voters of this area.

Civic Recreation

ESTABLISHMENT of a civic commission with recreation of all types for residents of all ages in its purview has been suggested by Alderman Michael Griffin and is being studied by city council's parks committee. The proposal appears to merit the fullest attention of the committee and of council.

It may seem to some that the alderman has exaggerated Victoria's deficiency in regard to providing for recreation. The city, he says, "pays the lowest in all of Canada toward the recreational needs of her citizens," and he supports this statement with figures: $4,800 for Victoria against $11,000 for Nanaimo and $415,000 for Vancouver, among other cities.

But his reference, of course, is to the actual planning and direction of recreational programs, such as the summer playground program, and not to the provision and support of facilities for recreation of all types, in which Victoria probably lags not one whit behind most other Canadian cities.

The point is that Victoria, while its actual and potential recreational resources are far from being poor, lacks an organization to make sure that these resources are used to the maximum benefit of all sections of the population; to foster community interest in recreation of every type, physical and mental, with attractive programs.

Although provincial financial help is available in having a commission with one or more trained community recreation directors, Victoria has not taken advantage of it.

Alderman Griffin has cited good reasons why it should do so now, and he is to be commended for bringing the situation to civic attention.

Aid for Enock

FOR THE FIRST time in more than a quarter of a century a Canadian is competing successfully against international-class speed skaters. During the past few weeks a young Torontonian by the name of Paul Enock has not only run up an impressive list of victories in numerous competitions throughout Northern Europe—the home of most Olympic speed skating champions—but has also set a new world mark for the 3,000-metre event.

This means that at long last Canada appears to have a potential gold medal winner ready for the next winter Olympics—an athlete wisely conditioning himself to international competition and willing to learn the ropes the hard way—an athlete, who in his very first attempt, blazed the name of Canada across a field almost deserted by this country since the days of Frank Stack.

For a while it seemed that this would not be so. Mr. Enock could no longer afford to compete in Europe. The money he realized from the sale of his furniture to finance the trip had run out, but the National Fitness Council has come to the rescue.

This much discussed new recreation agency, meeting recently to decide how best to spend the government's $5,000,000 grant to improve the national standing of Canadian athletic endeavour both home and abroad, has made him a grant of $500.

This should solve his problem and keep him hard at work beating the European champions who have had things all their own way up to now.

Such a grant does not affect his amateur standing and should pay handsome dividends by not only enhancing Canada's prestige abroad but by encouraging thousands of younger Canadians at home to revive the competitive sport of speed skating which has been far too long neglected here.

If this is an example of the Fitness Council's projected program of assistance, it is moving along the right path.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax ...

BY TOM TAYLOR

THERE was something said in the public prints the other day about flying saucers. These phenomena of the skies have taken rather a back seat lately, and no wonder. When sputniks about which there can be no physical doubt roam the heavens, they tend to diminish interest in the reality of such ghostly visitors.

Although, as later may be mentioned, you never can tell. But a meeting of experts, if I recall exactly, turned thumbs down on the saucers. They had examined hundreds of so-called sightings and concluded that all were susceptible to rational explanation. The supernatural was ruled out.

But of course everyone won't believe the experts, and perhaps just as well. Many a material blessing we enjoy would be unknown had the advice of experts been taken. It's the stubborn, persistent chap with the feel of some new creation in his bones who confounds them.

This isn't to deny the expert per se. An expert is a person who is the top of the tree in his profession and he didn't get there by being stupid. No. He has warrant for knowing more about his subject than the rest of us.

Only—and it's a saving grace—it is the sceptic who keeps experts in bounds. I am inclined to think myself that the expert is an outbreaching themselves these days, and it is just as well that some restraint at tends their dictum.

Except, of course, when it comes to your doctor. You'd better not challenge his opinion if you want to get well. He is more of an expert than you can ever be no matter how many journals you read, and you'd be wise to follow his instructions.

In other realms one has more freedom of thought, however. And some of it, at least, because of the experts themselves. They don't always agree and thus weaken their collective authority.

One day, for instance, a panel of top scientific experts met in New York to discuss the possibility of communicating with other worlds.

Flying saucers in reverse, as it were, if despite other experts these happen to be messengers from other planets.

They did not mention saucers, but some of the scientists believe that messages from beyond the solar system are impinging upon the earth.

How to capture and interpret them was the bugbear. One professor of physics was of opinion that if the world escapes the doom some other experts are predicting for it, a large part of human effort will go into trying to establish contact with these remote civilizations.

But then, the damper. Another professor of physics, presumably equally expert in solar research, said he was convinced that four days in the moon and other planetary systems belonged where they are—on several boxes.

And so what does one believe? That some day passengers will take off from Patricia Bay to spend the winter on Venus, or merely read about such voyaging in the cosmic strip?

The experts themselves, I fear, are their own biggest handicaps.

Another Chance for the West

By MAAC DEUTSCHER (Last of Three Articles)

THERE are many signs that Khrushchev is being driven back to the 1953 Malenkov-Beria line. He seems to be mooting the idea of a Russian withdrawal from Germany, to be carried out, if necessary, unilaterally and regardless of the consequences of East German Communism.

This would account for the sudden removal of the violent attacks on Molotov, the chief critic of the Malenkov-Beria line. This alone would provide an explanation for Khrushchev's deliberate ideological offensive against the Chinese.

He knows full well that if he were to withdraw from East Germany and declare disengagement in its regime, Mao would brand him as a traitor and mobilize against him as much of Communist opinion as he could.

In such a situation their differences over "peaceful co-existence" would indeed come to be academic. One way of rendering the cry of treason harmless is to brand in advance those who raise it as ultra-left dogmatists and warmongers.

On the other hand, if a new variant of the Malenkov-Beria plan were to prove practicable and lead to disengagement in Germany and a last-minute detente, then the advantage would be so great, from Khrushchev's viewpoint, as to outweigh the harm of a virtual dissolution of the Russo-Chinese alliance. Nothing less could outweigh it.

That Soviet policy may be coming full circle to its 1953 starting point is, of course, a conclusion that is not the surface aspect of Soviet diplomacy, where much contradicts this conclusion, but the trend underneath.

Yet even on the surface quite a few things have happened recently that make sense in the context outlined here.

For over three years Khrushchev has been shoving the showdown over Berlin and the separate peace treaty with East Germany. In the last few weeks his diplomacy has approached the Bonn government with quite unusual overtures, acknowledging the Federal Republic's legitimate place in NATO and yet urging rapprochement, trade, cultural relations and so on. Mr. Adenauer's ministers, who are hardly susceptible to Russian wooing, have recognized that there is something genuinely new in the Russian approach.

On the other side of the wall, Ulbricht has picked up his ears and has vented his displeasure by letting an official spokesman declare that East Germany will not enter the friendly line in which Khrushchev is addressing Adenauer and Strauss. This sounds like a piece of subtle blackmail on Ulbricht's part.

He tells Khrushchev that he will opt for Mao if Moscow goes back to the Beria-Malenkov line.

It should be recalled that in 1953 Ulbricht, as Molotov's real satellite, effectively sabotaged the "Malenkov-Beria line," and in Khrushchev's files there are certainly files bulging with reports about Ulbricht's later intrigues against Khrushchev himself.

Since the 22nd Congress has come out against the Albanians, i.e., against Mao, on the assumption that Khrushchev will stand by him to the end. He is sure to switch his allegiance if this assumption proves wrong.

This is a sly Byzantine game; and it is quite possible that Khrushchev is seeking to provoke Ulbricht into switching his allegiance. In that case, East Germany might turn into another Albania. Moscow may denounce the "Ulbricht clique" as a gang of criminals, sadists and hoodlums.

After such a denunciation Khrushchev could carry out a withdrawal to the Oder and Nease with relatively little loss of face. He would look not like yielding to Western imperialism but like taking umbrage at "dogmatists."

Russia's withdrawal from Albania may have set a precedent. And Khrushchev may be calculating for miscalculation that withdrawal need not necessarily lead to a collapse of East German Communism and to Germany's reunification. In this connection the introduction recently of conscription in East Germany may be significant.

Domestic Soviet developments support the hypothesis formulated here. The situation resembles in some respects that of 1953. Farming is again stagnant, in relation to needs. There is widespread irritation with food shortages and scarcity of other consumer goods. There is a growing demand for more investment in agriculture and consumer industry. "Kommunist" in its latest issue, refers obliquely but clearly to the inadequacy of the resources allocated to farming.

Following the 22nd Congress, the country is in a state of intense moral ferment. Popular grievances are voiced loudly. Rockets or meat? Spitniks or houses? These questions are asked even in Moscow's newspapers. After the recent rise in the military budget, the rate of civilian industrial investment has gone down.

To bring the nation-wide ferment under control Khrushchev needs either a war scare, which it is too dangerous to stir up, or a new bold initiative for peace and a radical reallocation of funds between civilian and military needs.

In domestic policy, where it concerns farming and consumer goods, Khrushchev has now quietly adopted most of the ideas of his defeated rival, Malenkov. He may be doing the same in foreign policy.

This partly hypothetical interpretation suggests that East-West diplomacy may be approaching quite an unexpected turn. New possibilities may be emerging, or rather old and wasted ones may be reappearing.

How much will be made of them depends on further developments in the Soviet bloc but also on whether the West realises and seizes the chance in time. Without this the potentialities of a new East-West relationship cannot be come actuality.

It is now widely admitted that in the spring of 1953 the Western powers missed a great opportunity, the opportunity of which Churchill spoke then, but which very few statesmen and commentators saw. Will the leaders and policy makers of the West show greater intelligence and initiative now?

First the maintenance of the unity of the Congo.

There has been widespread suspicion that the British government has been favoring the secession of Katanga, that it has done this under pressure from political and financial influences often spoken of as the "Katanga lobby." Now that is untrue. It is true that there has been strong support in some quite important quarters for the idea of an independent Katanga, but its leaders would be the first to admit regretfully that they have not succeeded in bringing the government round to their point of view.

At the same time the British government has maintained that the restoration of unity should be sought through peaceful negotiation not through the use of force, whether by the Congo government or by the United Nations.

This has been the subject of much criticism from those who held that the UN forces should be used to "end the Katanga secession," and that the chances of a settlement by negotiation were non-existent. It is especially over this that the British government now feels entitled to claim that developments are justifying its attitude.

The contrast with the dangerous situation of three months ago is quite remarkable, and suggests that there has been justification for the views of the British government. Now I personally have on several occasions felt doubtful of the wisdom of that policy and have indeed criticized it. But this has been on the handling of immediate problems on, in fact, matters of detail. I have, at the same time, found myself in general agreement with its objectives.

These objectives have been much misunderstood, and in some quarters misrepresented.

mercenary by the use of force in a way that might lead to serious fighting and bloodshed.

This is another point on which it now feels that it is being justified by developments, and that the line which it has supported both in the Security Council and in the assembly is proving the wise one.

It is too soon to be completely confident but one may hope that the cable sent to the chairman of the Security Council by the Lagos Conference of African heads of state opposing the Soviet request for a council meeting on the Congo was decidedly optimistic.

It spoke of "the welcome and encouraging developments at present leading to a satisfactory settlement and unification of the country," and of "the present good prospects for a solution of the Congo problem."

Another African problem on which there has been misunderstanding of the British government's attitude is that of Angola. There seems to be a wide belief that Britain is supporting Portuguese "colonialism." The answer to that is to be found in the voting in the UN Assembly.

The United Kingdom delegate voted for an Afro-Asian resolution; that resolution affirmed the "inalienable right of the Angolan people to self-determination and independence." It deplored "repressive measures and armed action" by the Portuguese and the denial to the Angolan people of "human rights and fundamental freedoms."

The British delegate, let me repeat, voted for that resolution. He voted against a Soviet resolution calling for sanctions against Portugal but so did a majority of the assembly.

It is not true, as often alleged, that the British government has been protecting the Katanga mercenaries. It is true that it has taken the line that it would be unwise to attempt to expel the remaining sharp as many people believe.

Costly Vote

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

THE next national election will be far and away the most expensive in Canada's history. And this is without making any allowance for the cost of implementing the promises of the victorious political party.

In this field of inquiry, accurate figures are hard to come by. Political parties tend to maintain a discreet silence about the campaign funds at their disposal and the expenditures made therefrom.

One solid figure is the estimated expenditure required to operate Canada's large, unwieldy election machine, under the direction of Chief Electoral Officer Castongue.

During the 1957 federal election, an estimated $5,000,000 was required to provide Canadians with the voting facilities which they used.

This time, the comparable figure is estimated as something like $10,700,000.

This increase, however, is dwarfed by that anticipated by the several political parties. There's a solid figure here, too.

The New Democratic Party has just opened a campaign appealing to the general public for $1,000,000 to "fight the general election campaign."

The NDP announcement added modestly that while this total would be less than a tenth of the $12,000,000 spent by parties of the right in the 1958 election, it hoped to get by nicely with this amount, thank you very much.

Indications are that a $1,000,000 war chest would be quite an improvement on the funds available to the old CCF party in either of the last two elections.

The $12,000,000 which the NDP estimates was spent by "parties of the right" during the 1958 campaign is an interesting guess. But guesses in this field are rarely too reliable.

By "parties of the right," presumably, the NDP people mean the Conservatives, plus the Liberals, plus the Socials.

As far as can be learned here, the Socials haven't released a hint of their expenditures in either of the last two general election campaigns. Since they were concentrated heavily in a few provinces, while others were passed by altogether, even informed guesses are hard to come by.

It is known, however, that they expect to spend more on the next election than they did on the last.

The Liberals and Conservatives have been only slightly less reticent this year. The Liberals were disturbed by a published report to the effect that they hoped and planned to spend $5,000,000—a nice, round sum—on the next campaign. The report went on to assert that this would constitute a new one-party record, far ahead of the $3,500,000 alleged to have been expended by the Tories in 1958. Whether their irritation stemmed from the fact that the estimate was close on the mark or, perhaps, that a gross overestimate of the funds likely to be at their disposal, no one knows.

Biggest spenders, as far as can be determined, will be the Conservatives. They'll be favored to win (though by a much smaller margin than in 1958), and contributors tend to like a bandwagon. Parties that campaign—Socials exist only to be spent—that there's little or no point in keeping money in the war chest when it might cost an election.

Though the NDP is under the impression that the "parties of the right" spent $12,000,000 last time out, a more reliable estimate is that all political parties expended between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000 for election purposes during that campaign.

A comparable figure for the next election would be of the general order of $12,000,000. And it could go slightly higher.

Whether or not the Liberals are aiming at a $5,000,000 campaign for the next election, it is a fact that cold, hard cash is reaching their treasury in larger amounts than was the case in 1958.

The 1958 campaign, a disaster for the Liberals in other respects as well, saw many of the reliable sources of Liberal funds drying up before the party collectors were on hand. In the wake of the Conservative resurgence in 1957, many erstwhile Liberal Party contributors made the belated discovery that they had really been Conservatives all along. The party's 1958 campaign suffered in consequence.

In recent months, Liberal sources say, things have been different.

All told, the cost of the next election campaign to Canadians in taxes and campaign fund contributions may reach and pass $21,000,000.

But it's only money.

It is not true, as often alleged, that the British government has been protecting the Katanga mercenaries. It is true that it has taken the line that it would be unwise to attempt to expel the remaining sharp as many people believe.

Defeatist

Your correspondent Harry Gregson seems to infer that the last word has been said on the possibility of peace and that further research is useless. A defeatist attitude.

When you consider his list of great "peace researchers" you don't wonder at his pessimism. To make his list more comprehensive he should have added Napoleon Bonaparte, Genghis Khan, and Alexander the Great.

Times change, and the opportunities for further knowledge grow. Therefore to be abreast of present possibilities one must be continually searching. The solution may lie just around the corner, so the intelligent thing to do is keep trying. Man made the mess; therefore man can and must unmake it.

No Guarantee

With reference to the recent press reports on the mission of Dr. N. Z. Alcock to Victoria to raise funds for the Peace Research Institute, to be part of a Canada wide endeavor in this respect, the statement was made that if the Peace Research Institute raised $2,000,000 by public subscription, the federal government would match this by a grant of $2,000,000.

I believe the implication of this statement to be quite clear, in that, the objects of the Peace Research Institute had the backing of the government in Ottawa.

I am today in receipt of a letter from Mr. Donald Fleming, minister of finance, in answer to my query which reads in part, and I quote: "I am not aware of any plan, its objective is Socialism—a world society in which every man, woman and child has freedom of access to all that is produced."

This included medical care; nothing being prepaid or paid, and certainly not government aided, since government couldn't exist.

I hope Mr. Mortimore recognizes the existence of this entity as a political party. A most distinguishing feature of it as an independent political party is the fact that it is the only organized opposition to capitalism in this part of the world.

Its existence cannot be wished away by silence.

Firm to Pay Debt in Bits

W. L. Laird Distributors Ltd. has agreed to pay the Pacific Great Eastern Railway $5,000 a year until its $30,000 debt to the provincially-owned line is paid off. Premier Bennett reported Wednesday.

The information was contained in an answer to a question submitted earlier by Gordon Dording (NDP-CCF-Burnaby).

For Freezing Plant

Fruit Growers Get Grant

The federal government has taken the first step to aid the first time the association had applied for a grant. The federal government's attitude toward a grant is known.

Herbert Bickford, association manager, announced yesterday a grant of $15,000 had been made by the federal government toward construction of the $40,000 plant to be built beside the present fruit shed on Keating Cross Road.

The next step will be approach to the provincial government "for what we hope will be a matching grant," Mr. Bickford said.

Equilibrium-Sanich Conservative MP George Chatterton was credited with quick action in obtaining the grant.

The new freezer will enable growers to chill their produce while awaiting favorable prices. Also eliminated will be the double handling previously necessary when berries brought in from the fields had to be transferred to trucks for delivery for freezing.

$3,500 Damage In Fire

Heat, smoke and water caused some $3,500 damage to an Oak Bay home yesterday afternoon when fire broke out in the basement.

"We got it just in time," one fireman commented after the blaze was extinguished. "The tremendous heat blistered paint all over the house. They'll have to have it re-decorated."

The fire occurred in the house occupied by D. G. Sloan, 2545 Orchard Avenue. It was reported by a neighbor at 2:10 p.m. Nobody was home at the time.

Basement stairs were badly damaged and the door leading to the living part of the house was charred. Heat smashed several windows.

Erase Politics from Hydro

Take Problem to Board, Says MLA

An emotional appeal to the government to take the politics out of hydro development and refer the hydro power problem at once to the national energy board for engineering and economists' recommendations was made in the legislature yesterday by Alex Macdonald (NDP-CCF-Vancouver-East).

"You are not telling the people of British Columbia the real facts of the power situation," he charged. He said if the government goes ahead with both Peace and Columbia developments now, "it will be condemning the B.C. Electric and B.C. Hydro customers to high cost power."

"Sports fishing is overdone by derbyism," he told the legislature. "Something should be done about it."

Mr. Tisdale said the shortage of salmon in Saanich Inlet last year was directly attributable to too many fishing derbies and said large prizes should not be necessary to induce people to go out and fish. "Far too much emphasis is placed on prizes for winners," he said. "If a fisherman is really a sportsman he doesn't need grand prizes such as cruises, cars and trips to foreign places."

Mr. Tisdale mentioned The Daily Colonist's King Fisher contest as an example of fishing derbies.

"When I go fishing I do so for the sport," he stated. "I love seeing a big salmon jump out of the water. And when I do get a fish I don't throw it away—I eat it."

Mr. Macdonald said power rate reductions will certainly be less than they should be, because the B.C. Electric and B.C. Hydro will be paying for costly, premature development of the Peace River.

"Why haven't we heard about a reduction in natural gas rates?" he asked.

Salmon Derbies Harm Sports Fishing—MLA

Saanich Social Credit MLA, John Tisdale yesterday blamed salmon derbies for depleting sports fish resources in B.C.

"Sports fishing is overdone by derbyism," he told the legislature. "Something should be done about it."

Mr. Tisdale said the shortage of salmon in Saanich Inlet last year was directly attributable to too many fishing derbies and said large prizes should not be necessary to induce people to go out and fish.

North Island Dream Coming True

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoors Editor

North Vancouver Islanders are about to see a 50-year dream come true as the highway finally is going north above Campbell River.

A weekend trip showed much headway has been made on the $2,000,000 highway reconstruction and relocation project between Campbell River and Kelsey Bay, although it is less than a month since contracts were awarded.

Slashings have been cut through timber stands for highway relocation, existing parts of the gravel road have been graded and the road is the best we have seen it, except for a little rough stretch around Bloedel.

Highway construction workers fill every available accommodation and trailer camps are starting to spring up along the road. New gravel pits are being developed.

The talk on the tip of every one's tongue at Sayward and Kelsey Bay is the highway job first, and steelheading on the Salmon River second.

Resort owners have their eyes on expansion. Paul Despins, with 100 acres on the Salmon River, this week will move all the cabins of Painter's Tye Camp at Campbell River by barge to his own Salmon River location.

Paving in a Year

Ray Fontaine is planning to add on to his White River Cabins resort. Both resorts are enlarging tenting and trailer accommodations. The Salmon River Hotel's new management plans improvements. Robert's Lake resort of Chancery Morry may undergo big changes as the mid-way resort.

Dawson Wade of Vancouver has the $966,003 contract for the 14 miles of road between Menzies Bay and Roberts Lake. Miller Cartage of Richmond has the $1,037,000 contract from Roberts Lake to Sayward.

The completely new road, to be built to first-class highway standards, should be ready for paving by spring of 1963.

"The north end of the Island has been asleep for 50 years. This is only the beginning as far as I am concerned. We

Stumbling Block

This bridge has been one of the stumbling blocks to the building of a road from Kelsey Bay on to Port Hardy.

The road from Port McNeill to the north bank of the Nimpkish already is a good full-width gravel road.

The 24 miles between Port Hardy and Port McNeill was built to good logging road standards by Rayonier. From Port McNeill to the north bank of the Nimpkish, about four miles, a road has been built recently by B.C.

As soon as the Nimpkish bridge is built, the highways department will extend the highway eight miles south to Beaver Cove.

A middle distance inland route through the centre of the Island would be more feasible and with use of existing logging roads would require only about 15 miles of new highway construction.

Alberni Issue

Unlicensed Pedlars Set Off Protests

ALBERNI — A protest against unlicensed door-to-door pedlars and telephone sales campaigns has been made to Alberni council by David Galliford, proprietor of Somass Drug Store.

In a letter Mr. Galliford told of persons refusing to give their names when telephoning residents to sell pre-paid packets of magazine subscriptions. He also told of pedlars of confectionery, vitamin products and the sale of Christmas cards from door-to-door.

He suggested the city should receive revenue from pedlars and licensed businesses should be protected from the unfair competition.

Meeting Set To Plan Home for Ill

PORT ALBERNI — Port Alberni branch of the Old Age Pensioners Organization is taking the lead in a plan for a nursing home for the district.

The OAPO will sponsor a public meeting in Port Alberni Legion Hall March 1. Mayor Loran Jordan will preside.

Invitations have been issued to local organizations to send delegates.

SUPPORT SOUGHT

Alberni council has agreed to send a representative.

Received and filed by Port Alberni council this week was a letter from Mrs. M. Addy asking the support of every able-bodied citizen for the project. She entered a plea on behalf of the elderly people of the district and deplored the need to send ailing older persons from the area where their friends and relatives reside.

Five Schools Raided

NANAIMO — Only a stopwatch was stolen, from Dufferin Crescent School, when intruders broke into five local schools early yesterday. Also entered were Mount Benson, Princess Anne, Queenway and Departure Bay Schools.

Canadian Back from Overseas

'Shame We Don't Do Enough'

NANAIMO — The head of the UBC home economics department has told a Nanaimo group "we in Canada have so much, it's a shame we don't do enough with it."

Miss Charlotte Black discussed her recent Asian and African tour in a speech to the Nanaimo branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers.

GOOD MATERIAL

She said that in The Congo, Japan and Hong Kong, she was able to pick up much valuable material on the nature of consumer food, marketing and processing.

Canadian delegates were very well received in these countries, but she found local persons asked many questions which were embarrassing for Canadians.

NATIVE QUESTION

Some were: "Do you have any native question? Do you have equal rights for all? Do you have any slums? How do you look after the aged?"

Miss Black said "a trip like this makes one aware of her own country's shortcomings."

Boys' Club In Nanaimo?

NANAIMO — This city would be an ideal location for a boys' club, John Pattinson, western area director of Boys Clubs of Canada.

During a brief visit, he talked to local youth leaders about starting a club and said the outlook is "good."

Sea Serpent Shuns Camera

CAMPBELL RIVER — For more than a week Alan MacLean has been waiting with loaded camera for the return of a benevolent-looking sea serpent, just to prove he wasn't seeing things.

But he admitted Wednesday the serpent has failed to reappear in Discovery Passage where he and his wife saw it a week ago. It disappeared in a flash of water when fishermen fired on it.

Mr. MacLean said he has received a series of raucous phone calls from sceptical friends but it's no joke—"Me and my wife saw the serpent quite clearly."

He said it was about 14 feet long, had a large bump in the middle and bulbous ball at the tail and swam slowly in the middle and bulbous ball at the tail and swam slowly.

But the fishermen, MacLean said, were at sea level while he and his wife had a much better view from their home 40 feet above sea level. "It had no resemblance whatsoever to a sea lion."

Nanaimo Club Given Island Hockey Title

NANAIMO (Special)—Nanaimo beat Victoria Cougars, 10-1, here last night and (touch wood) the Vancouver Island junior "A" hockey squabble is over for good.

Nanaimo's victory gave the club a 3-1 record for the round-robin series and actually tied the team with Esquimalt Bruins. But at a special meeting of the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association following the game, Bruins had their 5-4 victory over the Cougars Monday night taken away from them and awarded to Cougars because they used an overage player.

THREE YEARS

The player in question, John O'Neill, has been suspended for three years by the BCHA for falsifying his Canadian Amateur Hockey Association certificate.

Nanaimo now goes on to play New Westminster in a best-of-five series for the coast championship. First game is Saturday night in Nanaimo.

GOALIE PEPPERED

Bill Beck and Len Slogar scored three goals each for Nanaimo last night as Red Carr's club peppered Cougars goalie Bob Fisher with 70 shots. Harvey Thwin scored twice and Corky Place and Kenefick got one goal each.

Larry Biggs got Cougars' only goal in the second period.

Hawks Still Seek Runner-Up Spot

CHICAGO—It may be a little late but Chicago Black Hawks seem determined to make a fight of it with Toronto Maple Leafs for second place in the National Hockey League.

Stopped twice in a row just when they were picking up momentum, the Hawks got back on track last night with

GREAT HELP

VIEWS of SPORT

By Red Smith

In Sunday's Herald Tribune Harold Rosenthal wrote of present-day baseball training: "Beating the bushes for exhibition revenue is a thing of the past. Clubs go to training camp, stay put until the last possible moment, then come home and start the season..."

Living out of a Pullman berth for two weeks is only a memory relegated to the department of 'you think you got it tough today, huh?'

Though the hit-and-run swings through Yuma and Blaine and Hutchinson, Kansas, those whistle-stop tours of desert and canyons, those coffee breaks in Dublin, Ga., McComb, Miss., and Huntsville, Ala.? Nobody ever had more fun.

"Give me the population of a town in any section of the country," said Jimmy Isaminger, the late, great Philadelphia baseball writer, "and I'll describe it for you exactly whether I've been there or not."

If the club would have two sleeping cars of the old style with open berths instead of rooms. The manager had the drawing room in one car, the road secretary had the other, for everybody else—players, coaches, trainer and press—home was a lower berth behind a green curtain.

People who habitually travel by air today are often heard to say they can't sleep on trains. Who slept? The berth was where you stored the Gladstone full of soiled laundry.

The Social Hall was the ladies' washroom, which wasn't needed for other purposes because no ladies rode these cars. At the start of the tour a big galvanized metal garbage can was installed there and the porter kept it supplied with ice. At each exhibition stop it was somebody else's turn to lay in a stock of beer, rye bread and cold cuts.

If the non-playing personnel was considerable, with the newspapermen, secretary, three or four coaches, maybe an umpire or two, and sometimes a couple of trainmen, the ladies' room could get somewhat cramped. The air semi-solid with tobacco smoke. Yet it is not recalled that anybody got uncomfortable enough to retire while the brew and lies and laughs held out.

In the towns where games were played, the team cars were shunted to a siding to be picked up that night by a train bound for the next stop. The club generally took a few rooms for the day in the local hotel where a guy could take a shower and maybe even a nap if somebody else didn't beat him to the bed. If somebody did, it wasn't important; there'd be plenty of time for sleeping in the press box in July after the team had settled into the second division.

None So Blind
The Santa Fe had a lively press agent. Traveling with the old Philadelphia Athletics, it wasn't uncommon to pull into a town like Wagon Mound, N.M., and find as many as two thousand ranch folk at trackside, some of whom had loaded the family onto the buckboard at dawn and driven many miles to see Connie Mack go through.

If time permitted, Connie would make like a presidential candidate and address the crowd from the rear platform, introducing heroes like Eddie Collins Jr. and Benny McCoy, who were destined to prove invaluable in the coming campaign for eighth place.

John Quinn, the American League umpire, made several of these trips with the A's. One winter he got the agency for a souvenir pencil shaped like a baseball bat and stamped with Connie Mack's autograph. He did a lively business hawking them through the crowd on several stops, but then the papers from home caught up with the party.

The papers, naturally, carried reports on the warm receptions the team had been getting and described the scenes at the railroad stations where a blind man sold pencils in the throng. John retired from trade, with full approval of the American League president, Will Harridge.

A Kid Named Hegan
Getting aboard early one night in Lake Charles, La., two miscreants swiped one of those big milk cans off the loading platform and tucked it into Jimmy Isaminger's berth. The train pulled out around midnight and Jimmy just made it, weaving slightly. He was heard to make his way into the darkened car, fumble about vaguely, and then an imperious bellow roared above the clack of wheels and rattle of couplings:

"Out! Out! I say! Conductor! There's a man in my berth!" It seemed a very long time ago, a happy time. There was an exhibition (game) in Oklahoma City where Rogers Hornsby was managing the Texas League team.

"Take a good look at my catcher," Rogers said, "best young catcher in the minors. Kid named Hegan."

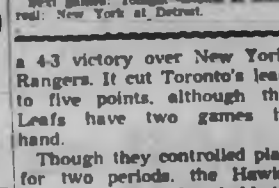

Maybe it wasn't as long ago as it seems, but today Jim Hegan's son Mike belongs to the Yankees.

CTV Grid Coverage
Two-Year Package
VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadian committee chairman, Hasting McMahon of Edmonton, said the CTV offer was "substantially higher" than the amount the CBC paid for 1961 TV rights.

Last year the CBC paid $100,000 and supplies game films, estimated to be worth $20,000 to the WFC coaching staffs.

The switch to CTV coverage became known as the Canadian Football League held informal sessions prior to opening of official business at today's annual meeting.

Although the television field has been left open to CTV earlier this week when CBC announced it would not bid for WFC television rights, the Western Conference's televi-

Though they controlled play for two periods, the Hawks were hard pressed to hold the Rangers, who took their first loss in the five games goalie Marcel Paille has played since he replaced Gump Worsley.

Don't Pass Up 'Double Kill'

By KEN WATSON

One of the most demanding if not the most difficult shot in curling is known in the points game as "inwicking."

In the parlance of the modern sharpshooter on the ice lanes it is usually referred to as the "double kill." The shot involves striking two stones by wicking off one onto the other.

LOGICAL CALL

The average curler is quite content to move one stone and leave the double for the experts. Even the competitors in the Grand Points Competition used to look as Howard Wood, Sr., a veteran of fifty consecutive Winnipeg "spels," recently stated, a score of four points out of the possible eight in inwicking was the same as manna from heaven.

In "points" the two stones are set two and one-half feet apart at a forty-five degree angle (See Fig. 1, No. 1 and No. 2) and on normal ice the in-turn is necessary to effect the inwick. But seldom is this idyllic situation found in a regular curling match. The stones involved will often be a greater distance apart and to make the shot more complicated they will, at all sharper or shallower angles.

LOGICAL CALL

Again take a look at Fig. 1. The in-turn is the logical call to dislodge No. 1 and No. 2. Even with this turn the shot will not come off unless the striking stone catches no more than one-third of No. 2. If the out-turn were tried "the stalker" should catch only a thin slice of No. 2 to glance squarely onto No. 1.

The counter-clockwise rotation of an out-turn causes the hitting stone to spring more to the left after striking a rock on the inside; much more than an in-turn which tends to follow on through after contact.

Therefore it makes sense to assume that an inwick from No. 2 to No. 3 where the angle is shallow and the stones are well-spaced requires an out-turn take-out. Here an in-turn, unless it struck No. 2 three-quarters full with tremendous force, would not have a ghost of a chance of rolling over to make contact with No. 3.

FINEST EFFORT

In 40-odd years of curling I have seen many great shots but the finest inwick effort called and executed was made by Dr. McKellar of Rosetown, Sask.

Use in-turn for inwick from No. 2 to No. 1. Use out-turn when angle is shallow—from No. 2 to No. 3.

A great inwick shot by Dr. McKellar of Rosetown, Sask.

"Doc" found himself in deep trouble along about the eighth end. As he surveyed the situation before he trotted down to the hack to play his last rock, he saw all gates to the rings barred and bottled against him. His opponents had three stones

ONE CHANCE

But there was one dim ray of light. (See Fig. 2.) If he could grab No. 1 stone as he went through the narrow port on the in-turn side he just might do the trick. Measuring the ice carefully the well-known Saskatchewan horse-fancier instructed his third where to hold the broom and then threw a heavy back-weight stone that came down the ice fast and true. His rock rubbed No. 1 and made like an arrow straight for No. 2 to strike it flush and count a single point. It was the most brilliant inwicking call ever, and I was the skip against whom the shot was perpetrated. (Telegram News Service)

Missing Chemist Became Laborer

ROCKFORD, Ill.—A $1.90 an hour factory laborer has been identified as a research chemist who disappeared from the University of Syracuse nearly seven years ago, police said here.

Police said a fingerprint check with the Federal Bureau of Investigation showed that Verne Hansen, a pigment grinder in a paint factory, was Dr. Carl Vernon Holmberg, who disappeared from Syracuse leaving a wife and three children.

Hansen told police his mind was a "complete blank" when he came to Rockford in 1955 dressed in a business suit and carrying a briefcase with the initials "V.H."

Hansen married since coming to Rockford but has since separated from his wife. Holmberg's wife divorced him about a year ago, police said.

GLASGOW, Scotland—Michael Denness was dining in a restaurant when he found a man in his soup.

The man was Peter McCulloch who slipped while working on the roof and plunged through a skylight into Denness' dinner.

PORTLAND, Ore.—Boaz Davis, 21, bought his girl friend the biggest valentine in town.

He rented a 25-foot billboard space at a cost of $100 to proclaim: "Boaz loves Ginger."

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy said U-2 pilot Francis Powers will be free to talk in Congress and the press after he concludes "important interviews" with government interrogators.

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press

The question many will ask after the big funeral procession in Paris is just where the Communist party fits into the picture?

An impressive demonstration, some say, but does it signify a movement of opinion within France against terror and violence, or is it merely a triumph for the French Communist party?

In London, The Daily Express has no reservations. "It was a considerable triumph for the Communists, no doubt about that at all," says correspondent Rene MacColl.

Other commentators are less clear-cut. The Times, for instance, believes that the French government will find it harder in future to "rattle the skeleton" of communism as a justification for savage repression of demonstrations aimed primarily at the keeping of Algeria French diehards.

Popular Front Seen

Nobody can say for sure exactly how many of those who marched in Tuesday's silent procession to the Pere La Chaise cemetery were Communists. Perhaps they were in the majority. The tight discipline suggested that but there were certainly plenty of ordinary people who never read a Marxist manifesto in their lives.

For some observers, the most significant inference is to be drawn from the demonstration in that France is moving toward a "popular front" the union of Communist and other left-wing elements that came to power briefly in 1936.

The Socialists have been fighting shy of the Communist embrace, but their leader Guy Mollet has said in effect that in an emergency he won't ask anybody who is on his side to show a visiting card—in other words he will accept help even from Communists in the event of a coup by the extreme right.

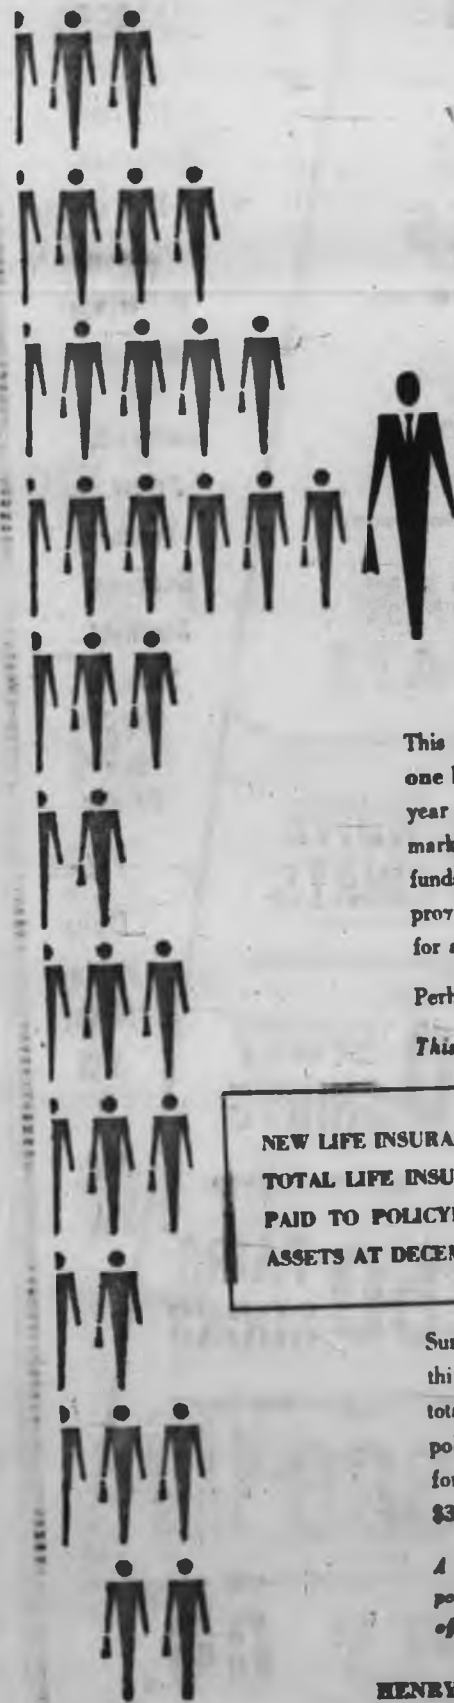

With a peaceful settlement looming in Algeria, President de Gaulle is thought to be scrupulously avoiding any action that would seem to align him with the Communists, however good the cause.

Tots Pulled From Blaze

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 35-year-old mother dragged her four children from their blazing home Wednesday after one tot had started a fire in a clothes closet.

Mrs. Kathleen Gojevic saved the lives of her children, John, 5, Kathleen, 3, Michael, 2, and Mary Ann, six months. She snatched the baby from her crib and hustled the others outside.

Firemen who answered the call said Mrs. Gojevic and her family, including another daughter, Anita, 12, might have been trapped but for her quick action.

Five-year-old John tearfully confessed to accidentally setting fire to clothes in a clothes closet with matches.

$200,000 Fire Quelled After 12-Hour Struggle

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP) — A stubborn, smouldering fire in a downtown business-apartment block, which caused $200,000 damage and left 75 persons homeless, was put out Wednesday after firemen fought it for 12 hours.

The first alarm sounded from the Stalmack Building shortly before 2 a.m. and firemen battled in near-zero weather until 2 p.m. before flames were finally snuffed out.

The 75 occupants of 45 apartments in the block were evacuated as soon as firemen arrived. No one was injured.

The fire started in the basement and is believed to have been caused by faulty wiring.

Health Board Supports St. Joseph's

Unanimous endorsement of the St. Joseph's Hospital $3,000,000 expansion program was given this week by the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

The board recommended all citizens support the $3,000,000 appeal. Federal and provincial governments along with the Sisters of St. Ann are paying most.

The board includes representatives of local municipalities and school board.

New Alberta Session

County Plans to Top Legislative Issues

EDMONTON (CP) — Establishment of a county system of local government in urban centres is expected to be one of two key pieces of legislation introduced during the Alberta legislature which opens today.

The other is a government plan to rewrite certain regulations governing the multi-million dollar oil industry.

Lieutenant-Governor Percy

Liberals Outrace Tories

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Progressive Conservative government announced its plans in the Throne Speech at the opening of the Manitoba Legislature today, but the Liberals, the official opposition, jumped the gun Wednesday.

Lieutenant-Governor Percy said his 11-member group in the 57-seat House will seek extension of exemptions from provincial hospital insurance premiums and introduction of uniform time across the province.

The Liberal leader also announced his party will oppose introduction of any new labor legislation based solely on the report of Mr. Justice G. E. Ritchie, who made recommendations after investigating a six-month strike in 1960 at the Brandon Packers Ltd. plant in Brandon.

The government is expected to introduce labor legislation based on the report, which made a general survey of labor-management relations in the province as well as the Brandon dispute.

First Talk in Decade

'Real' Railway Parley

MONTREAL (CP) — Exploratory talks aimed at trying to reach a new contract covering 130,000 non-operating railway employees opened in earnest Wednesday for the first time in more than a decade.

Railway and union negotiators met all day in a room in a downtown hotel to start discussions on a series of railway offers presented late last week.

Music Festival Set in Duncan

DUNCAN — This year's music festival will be held March 9 to 17 at Mount Prevost. Duncan Elementary, Alexander and Cowichan High schools. Half of the 750 entries are piano students. There will be 42 sessions.

The negotiators are scheduled to meet again at 10 a.m. today.

No statement was issued on details of the talks, but a CNR official said the parties seem to be entering into lengthy discussions of a "pretty general nature."

Asked about further meetings, W. T. Wilson, CNR's vice-president of personnel, said he expected "repeated sessions" in the present exploratory stages.

Spokesmen for both parties said this marks the first time that serious talks have started so early in the contract talks.

In previous years, they said, Wednesday's meeting was the second in the bid to reach a new contract agreement. At the first, on Jan. 23, the railways presented the outline of their offer.

The union's demands were served late in December.

Live-Minnow Drinker Died Natural Death

MONTREAL (CP) — A cerebral hemorrhage caused the death of the 250-pound former nightclub bouncer who died in provincial police custody last week, a coroner's jury ruled Tuesday.

Varsity To Hold Symposium

The second annual academic symposium of Victoria University will be held Feb. 24 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Gordon Head faculty buildings.

"The Student and the University—the National and International Aspects" will be the topic of the symposium.

There will be three panel discussions and a luncheon at which Dean Neil Perry of the faculty of commerce and business administration will speak.

Chisholm to Address Men's Canadian Club

Dr. Brock Chisholm, former director-general of the World Health Organization, will address the Men's Canadian Club at 12.15 p.m. Tuesday at the Empress Hotel on new dimensions of responsibility.

Severe Criticism

Mental Health Drive Lacks Only Queen

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario doctor has described the advertising of the Mental Health Week annual campaign as appallingly ineffective.

Dr. Donald McCulloch said the only thing lacking in the campaign is a "mental health queen."

He made his criticism in Canada's Mental Health, an official publication of the federal health department.

Mental Health Week is endorsed by both federal and provincial governments and sponsored by the Canadian Health Association.

Dr. McCulloch said fewer than 400 people visited the Ontario Hospital in Toronto when it held its open house in 1960, and 64 per cent of these heard about it through personal contact.

He said the figures provided scant support for present advertising methods of speeches, pamphleteering, television and radio spot messages and press articles.

Cuban Pilot Flees To Freedom Here

GANDER, Nfld. (UPI) — A 26-year-old Cuban flier jumped a Cubana airliner early yesterday and asked permission for transit privilege in Canada so he could join his wife in Bogota, Colombia.

The man, co-pilot of the plane, was identified as George Nicholas Leonard. He was being detained in RCMP barracks pending a routine study of his case.

The immigration department in Ottawa said the case probably would be disposed of in several days and Leonard given permission to leave Canada voluntarily for Bogota or face deportation. A spokesman said the inquiry was routine in cases of persons entering illegally.

W. J. Collins, immigration officer at Gander, said Leonard was Cuban-born despite his English name. He said the co-pilot spoke quite good English. Collins said he questioned the man and was told the circumstances and reasons for his defection. He said they were personal and declined to disclose them. "They're quite obvious," Collins said.

Dire Tales Rapped

Anti-Fluoride Drives Damage Public Trust

EDMONTON (CP) — Anti-fluoridation groups are "scaring" people with dire tales of what will happen if fluorides are added to community water supplies, the Hall royal commission on health services was told Wednesday.

Dr. L. K. Brooks, past president of the Alberta Dental Association, likened the campaign to that waged against X-rays 100 years ago. He said people were told then X-rays would allow others to see through their clothes.

FRIGHTENED PEOPLE
Anti-fluoridationists, he declared, have frightened enough people to make it difficult for municipal plebiscites to obtain the two-thirds majority required in Alberta.

In only 13 of 29 communities where plebiscites have taken place was a sufficient majority achieved, though 20 communities gave fluoridation a majority of better than 50 per cent.

Dr. Brooks appeared as a spokesman for the dental association, which presented a brief stating fluoridated water cuts tooth decay by 60 per cent if used continuously from birth to age 12.

DENTAL PLAN SOON
The Alberta Dental Association said it plans to develop a province-wide dental plan in the near future.

The association told the royal commission on health services it favors a co-insurance or indemnity type of plan, under which subscribers are required to pay certain charges.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS
Dr. Brooks said the group is opposed to being linked to any medical plan or agency, which would be concerned with financial aspects. He said the association should be allowed to operate an independent pre-paid dental services plan.

"We don't feel the profession could provide good dental service if someone else has control of the purse strings. We would rather have charge of financing and be allowed to administer the plan ourselves."

Arizona Charlie Returns

OTTAWA (UPI)—Arizona Charlie's famous Palace Grand dancetown in Dawson City, Yukon Territory, is being restored for the gold rush festival commemorating the 1898 gold rush. Northern Affairs Minister Walter Dinsdale said yesterday.

He said $128,463 has been spent so far.

Second Survival Unit Hailed at Graduation

Together in drill by members of the second national survival training course was praised by the inspecting officer at the passing-out ceremony at Bay Street Armory yesterday.

"I guess you are surprised at what a difference six weeks' training can make," said Col. L. W. Johnson, 25 Militia Group commander.

He congratulated members of the 200-man training force who plan to stay in the militia and urged the men who had not yet volunteered to consider doing so.

"You are not training for war," he said. "The Canadian militia does not want war any more than anyone else does."

"You have been trained to deal with disaster whether created by man or nature. Through this training you will be able to help your fellow man."

Andy Capp

"I TOLD yer Andy would get the meaning wrong!"

Scarfe Raps Test Switch

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some B.C. educators expressed criticism Wednesday of the provincial government's decision to decide a child's educational future on the basis of tests in Grade 7.

Education Minister Peterson told the legislature Tuesday all Grade 7 students will write departmental exams in June.

The exam results will decide if the student goes on into regular Grade 8 scholastic programs or is siphoned off for Grade 8 vocational training.

Dean Neville Scarfe of the UBC college of education said an examination at the Grade 7 level would "reproduce all the evils of the English system which decides a child's future at 11."

He felt there "should be more flexibility than any examination of any particular day should decide." A child might be ill or upset when he wrote the exam that would decide his educational future.

Pay-Limit Laws Nearly Useless

MONTREAL (CP)—A University of Toronto professor Wednesday made a bitter attack on Canada's minimum wage laws and welfare benefits in a speech at the mid-winter conference of the Community Funds and Councils of Canada.

Prof. John Morgan, now on leave from the university's school of social work on a research grant of the Institute of Public Administration of Canada, called Canadian minimum wage laws "so inadequate as to be practically valueless."

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said this week the education department, Greater Victoria school board and the National Employment Service hope to train 200 people in the trade during a nine-day course.

Maids will receive a five-day instruction course.

City Police Pledge $450 for Widow

A contribution of at least $450 has been pledged by the Victoria Police Union for the family of Vancouver detective Larry Short, killed in a Vancouver hotel gun battle Friday.

Each of the 80 Victoria policemen will contribute $5 from their March pay cheques to help the detective's wife and three children.

Experts Say:

Beards Help Celebrations

A formula for easing Victoria along the rocky road to centuryhood was offered to a group of city businessmen last night by the John D. Rogers Producing Co.

And the key to the formula, said company vice-president Wayne Lemmon, is a plain, old-fashioned beard.

"Beards," Mr. Lemmon explained, "turn ordinary citizens into boosters and, by their very existence, ensure a high degree of participation in centennial celebrations."

EFFECTIVE VEHICLE

He urged centennial-minded citizens to plumb the psychology of the beard as it relates to celebrations. "It is a most effective participation vehicle—so effective that I have seen celebrations fall when beard-growing was voted down by a committee."

Ranking close to beards, Mr. Lemmon said, is a good dose of history.

SURE-FIRE HIT

"History, gentlemen, is box office. When Hollywood wants a sure-fire hit, it turns the cameras on history. If you want your centenary to be a resounding success, you must do the same."

Mr. Lemmon went on to emphasize the importance of organizing the history carefully into a production spectacular.

History, he continued, is more than a lot of people "running around in circles."

LOCAL ACTORS

Properly presented by a cast of 500 or 600 local actors, he said, a historical pageant can have a cultural quality which will bring down the house.

Community celebrations—centennial and otherwise—are no longer victims of chance and the vagaries of the weather. Properly organized, they can be sure-fire hits.

LIKE BUSINESS

A professionally planned civic celebration is a highly complex business operated by carefully controlled financial systems.

The suggestions will be collated and a set of recommendations prepared by Mr. Lemmon's company for the centennial committee.

With operating expenses of Mountain View home for elderly men spiralling, and the number of patients steadily declining, city welfare administrator William Hooson yesterday offered new figures to bolster his contention the home should be closed.

He explained Mountain View Home—licensed originally as a boarding place for elderly men on city assistance—had become, in fact, a hospital.

"We can't carry on the way we've been doing because many of the men have been receiving the equivalent of hospital care, even though the home isn't licensed to provide it."

Big Difference

If Mountain View was operating within the stipulated rate, cost to the city for each man would be a mere $8.50 a month. This, multiplied by the 25 patients and then by 12 months would mean an annual bill of only $2,550.

At present, it costs the city $170 to keep a man in Mountain View for one month. Applying the formula above, net charge per man per month on city coffers is $83.50.

Hence, the home's annual operating deficit of $22,000. It is here, said the welfare administrator, the trouble starts. Many of the men in Mountain View require complete hospital care and should therefore be assigned to private hospitals rather than boarding homes.

While the monthly rate for private hospitals is $195 per man, the city's share of the cost is only 10 per cent of this, or $19.50, under the welfare cost-sharing formula.

If this is calculated on the basis of the number of patients in Mountain View, the incongruity of the situation becomes evident.

First Concern

The 25 elderly men could be provided with proper, licensed hospital care for only $5,850 a year as compared with the whopping $22,000 now.

Mr. Hooson said he wasn't appealing for closure of the home on the basis of economy alone.

"My first concern, as a social worker, is for the care of the old men in Mountain View. If they are placed in private hospitals, they will be given the care they really need and all of the necessary facilities will be provided."

"If the move was not in the best interests of the men," he said, "any economy would be irrelevant. It's just that they can be looked after better in a hospital."

If care of the 25 aged men cannot be provided either legally or economically at Mountain View, then the need for other accommodations is evident, Mr. Hooson contended.

And, he concluded, construction of new facilities—including the 67-bed Glen Warren Hospital scheduled for completion shortly—suggests the men will have little trouble obtaining first-class accommodations.

Parole Expert

Here Next Week

Mrs. Mary Lynch, only woman on the five-member National Parole Board, will visit Victoria Tuesday and Wednesday.

She will visit William Head prison, address the John Howard Society and the Canadian Club and pay a call to Attorney-General Bonner.

Sherwood on the Gorge?

The Sherwood Forest of Robin Hood and his merry men may be recreated in a wooded area fronting onto the Gorge east of the Gorge bridge at Tillicum.

A $300,000 development is proposed for the parkland featuring drawbridges and moats, dungeons, a village square, Nottingham Castle, a pageant park with outdoor theatre, a millhouse and mill pond, a deer park and barbecue pits for picnic cooking.

The wooded area stretches along

Gorge Road in Saanich from Millgrove to Tillicum. It is owned by Victoria but has never been dedicated for park use.

Two Viking-type longboats are also included in plans, each capable of carrying 50 to 60 passengers from a dock in the Inner Harbor to a landing in the Gorge, outside the massive castle wall.

Alternative approach would be through the main gate on Gorge Road with a drawbridge and a fanfare of trumpets to welcome guests. Visitors would be required to change their Canadian or United States currency for special Sherwood Forest coins, worth 25 cents each.

Vancouver businessman Milton Tisdale, who is a prime mover in the proposal, said last night one of the major attractions would be the outdoor theatre.

He envisioned symphony concerts, little theatre plays and ethnic group folk dancing as possible entertainments to use the theatre.

Negotiations with city parks committee for a lease on the land are under way.

Saanich Advised:

Compel That Resort To Purchase Water

Saanich public works committee has recommended council oppose granting of a domestic water licence to a Cordova Bay resort.

The provincial water rights branch last fall advised the municipality that McMoran's Cordova Bay Ltd. had applied for a licence to take water from a spring on its own property.

The water is used for both domestic and irrigation purposes. Main objection raised by the public works committee is that the resort has closed off three connections to the municipal water main, and with them the only source of revenue beyond franchise charges totalling $32.80 a year.

Nevertheless, as Reeve Stanley Murphy pointed out, water users throughout the municipality are sharing the cost of providing emergency water supply to the resort, which includes a shopping centre and restaurant.

Hydrants, for fire protection at the resort, are provided and maintained out of profits from the sale of water.

Coun. Harry Todd said the private spring-fed water system had functioned successfully for almost 40 years. He argued it should be permitted to continue, provided the operators agreed to pay the municipality's minimum water charge.

The committee was told this would approximately double the water payments by the resort.

"We can lead them to the water but we can't make them drink," said Coun. Robert Chard. "I can see no use in denying them use of the water provided the resort operators pay the minimum charge for a hookup to the municipal system."

Land Office To Reopen In New Home

Another link with Victoria's past will be cut Friday when the land registry office closes its doors at 2 p.m. in the old courthouse.

When it opens again at 10 a.m. Monday, the office will be carrying on business in the new law courts building, chief clerk E. S. Gray announced yesterday. Office records and equipment will be moved during the weekend.

Island Booth at Seattle Fair Expected to Be Dropped Today

By TED PULFORD

Plans for a booth publicizing Vancouver Island at the Seattle World's Fair are expected to go out the window this afternoon at a special meeting of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau's board of directors.

A meeting of the bureau's cost-conscious finance committee, which hammered out the first draft of a budget Monday, agreed to drop the $57,000 proposal, but a final decision won't be made before this afternoon's meeting.

While neither the finance committee nor bureau commissioner William Hawkins would comment on the decision—informal sources in the island tourist industry agreed the booth plan would likely be squelched.

Main reason, it is understood, is that heavy advertising campaigns already planned will make the island booth redundant.

Camille's Valentine Poem Thanks Gallant Bennett

FRIENDLY PERSUASION: Premier Bennett didn't forget Valentine's Day yesterday.

He sent flowers to the desks of the three women MLAs—Minister Without Portfolio Mrs. Bada Brown (who was away ill); Mrs. Lela Haggren (NDP-CCF—Grand Forks-Greenwood) and Mrs. Camille Mather (NDP-CCF—Delta).

Both Mrs. Haggren and Mrs. Mather thanked the premier just before adjournment yesterday.

And Mrs. Mather offered a poetic Valentine in return. She read this offering to the premier:

"Before I'll be your Valentine You must become a friend of mine. To win the heart of this NDP You must come over and sit with me!"

END OF THE AFFAIR: As a result of the plate full of dummy ducks presented to Mrs. Mather in the legislative restaurant Tuesday, restaurateur M. F. Longhead warned the waitresses that enough was enough.

"There must be no more practical jokes," he told them yesterday.

The waitresses could be for given a smile as Mr. Longhead passed on to other business.

Someone had pinned a large paper cutout of a cupid on the back of his suit coat.

NOT AND COLD: Here's the latest gimmick—deep-fried legislation.

Agriculture Minister Frank Mather said he'd had some in an interior restaurant not so long ago and that it was delicious. It is something akin to baked Alaska.

Apparently a scoop of ice cream is dipped in batter, then dropped into a deep-fryer.

"Is it served with onions?" inquired NDP-CCF leader Robert Strachan.

"Silly as it sounds, it's very palatable," said Mr. Richter.

SORRY FOR THE INCONVENIENCE: A barrage of printed protests against any legislation which would outlaw trading stamps in B.C. is still being fired at all MLAs.

Customers of the supermarket which have the schemes merely have to sign their names in a protest printed on a postcard and addressed to individual members.

The supermarkets even pay for the postage stamps.

But a number of customers have been doing the twist.

They've crossed out certain parts of the protest and inserted other words which show they're dead opposed to the schemes. Apparently the supermarkets don't know they're paying to help outlaw the schemes.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE:

Whenever Opposition leader Robert Strachan makes a major speech in the legislature, the New Democratic Party-CCF members wear red roses in their lapels.

The roses, we found out yesterday, are fake.

But it certainly makes for efficiency with economy. Members put the roses in the lapels just before entering the legislative chamber and then, after the sitting, return them to a tray in their caucus room... ready for the next grand performance."

JUST THE FACTS, MA'AM!: Social Crediters brag theirs is the government which keeps you informed.

Health Minister Eric Martin demonstrated this yesterday when a reporter inquired about the government's submission to the sittings of the Royal Commission on health services here next week.

Here is a full verbatim account of the conversation.

Reporter: "When will we be able to get the brief?"

Minister: "I can't say."

Reporter: "But the government will have a brief?"

Minister: "I can't say."

Reporter: "Why not?"

Minister: "Well... it's well, we're working very hard."

Reporter: "Come now, surely the government will present a brief to the royal commission?"

Minister: "I'm not going to say one way or the other."

Mr. Martin, incidentally, was the same minister who sparked one of the bitterest flurries of the session a year ago when he refused to file a report until after the legislature had approved estimates of expenditures to implement recommendations in the report.

High-Rise Planned On Dallas

Plans for the first high-rise apartment building on Dallas Road—18 stories containing 56 suites—are being checked by city officials.

And, the Colonist learned last night, there is a possibility a second high-rise apartment will be built on Dallas.

The $800,000 18-story building is planned at the corner of Dallas and Menzies and includes some underground parking in a two-deck garage. Balconies will line both the north and south sides of the building.

Described as a "tower block," the tall building will also boast a private, kidney-shaped swimming pool.

Wilson on Merger:

Right Chairman All City Wants

The city will consider any expert study of amalgamation by Greater Victoria municipal ities if a competent chairman is proposed, Mayor R. B. Wilson said last night.

He was commenting on a Colonist editorial which described as puzzling his attitude and that of city council to an informal study as proposed recently by Esquimalt and Oak Bay councils.

NOT OBSTINATE

Victoria's main concern is that any study be complete and completely impartial, he said. He denied city council is taking an obstinate stand against a study by the municipalities.

City council, on two recent occasions, has resolved unanimously to support the principle of a government-ordered study under a section of the Municipal Act dealing with metropolitan government.

Hollywood Beauty

Tips from Cyd Charisse On the Art of Relaxing

HOLLYWOOD — Cyd Charisse was leaving the next day for Rome but as she sat chatting with me, she was remarkably relaxed.

"Maybe I'm not as calm as I seem," Cyd confided. "But I have worked at relaxing a long time. About seven years ago I heard of a chair that had been scientifically designed to follow the body's contour and release tension. I bought one of these and have it in my dressing room, and I use it whenever I feel keyed up."

"A big mistake is to go to bed when you are excited from work or a party. No matter how late it is, I lie in my chair with my favorite eye pads on until I feel drowsy. Then I can drop off to sleep as soon as my head hits the pillow. I never thought sleeping pills were the answer. The kind of sleep you get from drugs is not refreshing."

FOOT BATH

"If I am away from home and don't have my chair," Cyd continued, "I lie down and put my feet higher than my head. That's a trick I learned in ballet class. It is good to let the blood flow away from my feet and to reverse the pull of gravity. Another way to calm down is to soak your feet in hot water. It draws the blood away from the brain."

"When you are tired it helps to analyze what caused it," Cyd went on. "After tennis I love to take a whirlpool bath. You can stimulate the circulation and feel the soreness go away. If you stay in it long enough, I think if you can afford it, this type of water massage is an investment in health."

Cyd's figure is flawless and I mentioned it to her. "I exercise every day," she confessed. "I would feel stiff if I didn't. The first thing I do when I get up in the morning is to stand by an open window and do breathing exercises. There is nothing that wakes me up and makes me feel better than filling my lungs with fresh air."

I asked Cyd if she could pass on to the layman one of these exercises.

"There is great power in proper breathing, and if you have not been used to deep breathing, you may feel a little light headed at first, but that is the sign of how much you need more oxygen."

"A simple exercise is to stand up straight and fall over ragdoll fashion, limp and relaxed. With your head hanging down between your legs, exhale until you feel all the stale air has been expelled. Start to come up slowly, inhaling to a count of 10. When you are up, count to 10 again before you flop over. This time exhale slowly. If 10 is too much for you, begin where you can, but make 10 your goal."

Cyd cautioned against a too ambitious start. "Once you are over any trace of dizziness, repeat this exercise four times. One with a count of 10, then eight, then six and finally four. This rhythm has an energizing effect."

"I have tremendous energy," Cyd declared. "I think it comes from not letting myself get overly tired and from exercising and deep breathing."

"I am a great believer in exercise—in anything that will stimulate circulation. Most people don't use their bodies enough, and they get stiff and out of shape. It is what you do every day that means most."

Manufacturer Says

Hope for the Best, Prepare for Worst

A penetrating look into "Manufacturing in Canada in relation to the Common Market" was given by Mr. F. D. Mathers, president of Canadian Manufacturers' Association to the Provincial Council of Women of B.C. delegates.

Mr. Mathers spoke after a luncheon in the Empress Hotel following the opening sessions of the annual meeting.

ECM AND CANADA
"As we all know, in the current negotiations between London and the ECMA authorities, Britain is seeking the most favorable consideration possible of her special relationship with the other nations of the Commonwealth. We, in Canada, cannot be expected to be exactly indifferent to Britain's proposed Common Market entry. After all, Britain is still taking something like 17 per cent of our total exports."

"We cannot know at this stage just what proportions of these exports will eventually lose the advantage of imperial preference, but while hoping for the best, we should prepare for the worst in the sense that we should expect no particular consideration by the Common Market nations for a wide range of our products and certainly not for our manufactured goods."

"There are possible compensatory factors, notably the improvement in sales opportunities here in Canada for our own industries which would follow the progressive reduction and eventual elimination of the preferential tariff rates which British exporters currently enjoy in this country."

MAY BENEFIT
"Apart from this, I think there is much to be said for the belief that British membership in the ECM may actually rebound to the benefit of certain of our own industries, for, with more advantageous access to the whole West European market, Britain's industries may reasonably be expected to step up their imports of necessary raw materials."

"Also, let us not underestimate the scope for potential improvement in our own manufacturing sales prospects inherent in the rising prosperity and living standards of Western Europe in consequence of its rapid economic integration."

Mr. Mathers made it clear to his audience that he was dealing in probabilities rather than certainties.

Turning to the internal situation Mr. Mathers emphasized the significance of manufacturing industry's play in Canada's economy.

He said that manufacturing, as a single industry, employs one quarter of the working population, more than all agricultural and extractive industries combined.

"It is only necessary to remember that it is both Canada's leading wealth producer and largest taxpayer, to realize how fundamental is the health of manufacturing industry to the well being of the economy and maintenance of our national living standards."

NEED NEW JOBS
Citing the forecast that there will be 9,000,000 more people in Canada 20 years from now Mr. Mathers said that by 1980, somehow or other, we have to create nearly 4,000,000 new jobs and the manufacturing industry will have to provide at least 1,000,000 of them.

"Will this great expansion of people and industry be largely condensed in one area—will Ontario and Quebec again get the biggest share of the prosperity that follows from such an expansion?" he asked.

According to Mr. Mathers the answer is "no." He thinks "we must be very concerned about a situation in which 65 per cent of the people—and over 80 per cent of the manufacturing industry—are so heavily concentrated in only two of the 10 provinces."

NEED INCENTIVES
"If the federal, provincial and local governments wish to have new industry locate in particular areas, then between them they must make the incentives attractive enough for industry to go where it would like to go."

"The problems of the less industrialized provinces are essentially those of Canada itself in miniature—an insufficient population and lack of the specialist skills which play a key role in modern industry. Obviously, rational and provincial policies should be directed to encouraging a population build up in these regions of the country and to the promotion of higher educational standards."

At the beginning of his speech Mr. Mathers sounded an optimistic note by stating that the present economic picture in Canada had "all the earmarks of a moderate boom."

Mrs. Glen E. Braden, left, president of the new Local Council of Women at Dawson Creek, and Mrs. C. P. Pickell who heads the month-old Council at Fort St. John.

Councils Formed in North

Two new Local Councils have been formed, one at Dawson Creek and another at Fort St. John. It was reported at the opening day sessions of the Provincial Council of Women annual meeting.

Mrs. Glen Braden is president of the branch at Dawson Creek which was formed on Dec. 4, 1961.

Mrs. Braden is well known in Victoria, having accompanied her husband here when he was first elected MLA for the Peace River in 1937. Mr. Braden was member for his district over 11 years and they made many friends here.

Their son, Gray, is now studying chemical engineering at the University of Oklahoma and their daughter, Mary Lou, now Mrs. R. B. Mitchell is living in Calgary.

Mrs. Braden has always been interested in public affairs and has taken active part in many organizations. As wife of the Mayor of the northern city of 11,000 population it is only natural that Mrs. Braden has taken the leadership in forming the new Local Council.

The Fort St. John Council, formed only a month ago, is headed by an energetic young woman, Mrs. C. P. Pickell. Her husband, a member of a pioneer family of the north, is assistant superintendent of the West Coast Transmission.

Mr. Pickell's father, Robin Leo Pickell actually chose the site of Fort St. John when he established the first telegraph office there in 1918.

The Pickells, who have three daughters, aged 13, 12 and 10,

ST. JOHN'S
The Women's Guild of St. John's Anglican Church will meet on Monday, Feb. 19, at 2:30 p.m. in the lower hall.

live on a large farm of 800 acres. Mrs. Pickell is an active farmer herself.

Mrs. Pickell can run a tractor (and does) pull binders and balers (and does). Last summer she brought in grain from over 100 acres.

This on top of driving her three girls three miles to catch the school bus and returning to collect eggs from her 50 hens, do a spot of housework and get meals ready.

When it was suggested that she might be doing a little pioneering herself she answered matter of factly, "I don't look at it that way."

Still in the formative stage, plans are being made by the Pickell family, including the girls, to run a riding stable for tourists in the summer.

1/2 AWAKE Nights 1/2 ASLEEP Days

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and turn in bed, then are dull and listless during the day. When kidneys slow down wastes and acids pile up in the system. Disturbed rest, tired feeling and backache often follow. If you don't rest well at night—if you feel dull in the daytime—see Dr. J. K. Kinsley. Then you feel better—rest better—work better. You can depend on Dr. J. K. Kinsley P.M.

Evening Of Films And Music

FULFORD — The people of Beaver Point Community put on another of their pleasant get-togethers on Saturday night at the Community Hall. About 40 people turned up and viewed some excellent films shown by Mrs. W. Seymour. Shown were scenes of Salt Spring Island, Oregon, the coast, sea-lions on rocks, and breakers.

Mr. Carl Markl and his nephew, Eric Markl, entertained with lively Swiss music. Refreshments rounded off an enjoyable evening.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Do I have the right to feel insulted? I went with a man for five years. After a while it became apparent that his wife would never give him a divorce. I could fill the newspaper with items which prove this woman is plain nutty but I won't bore you.

Wally and I decided not to let this shrew ruin our lives. We took an apartment together and everyone who knows us is well aware of the arrangement. My maiden name is on the mailbox along with his name. This is quite a conversation piece, but we believe in being open.

I work with a woman who has always had "nose trouble." She has never been particularly friendly, so I was surprised when she gave me a birthday gift—a set of guest towels with "Mr. and Mrs." embroidered on them.

I believe this was intended as a vicious dig. Shall I ignore it or tell her off? — MISS GIVINGS.

Dear Miss: Anyone who defies conventionality, so flagrantly as you (conversation piece indeed!) should be prepared for a few slings and arrows.

A woman in your position can ill-afford the luxury of telling people off. Accept the gift in good faith and say thank you. And if this is the worst dig you get, consider yourself mighty lucky.

Dear Ann Landers: Please settle a problem that is causing me a great deal of trouble.

Brooke, 3496 Calumet Street. The wedding will take place in St. Aidan's Church, Friday, March 16, at 8 p.m., with Rev. A. C. McLeod officiating. Bridal attendants will be the bride-elect's sisters, Miss Marcia Fawcett and Miss Linda Fawcett as maid of honor and junior bridesmaid, and Miss Fern Sammon as senior bridesmaid. Highlights of the coming events were the garden party, to take place on Saturday, July 7, and the Christmas Bazaar on Saturday, Dec. 1. A donations tea will be held in the Deanery on Feb. 23.

The following committees were appointed: general convener for all stalls, Mrs. J. F. K. English; kitchen convener, Mrs. Brian Whitlow, with Mrs. M. Stubbs; teas and supplies, Mrs. C. Riach; knit goods, Miss L. Graham; and Miss K. Jaffray; linens and novelties, Mrs. T. C. Beard and Mrs. E. J. Stocker; aprons, Mrs. A. Mayfield; flowers and gifts, Miss Bertha Morley; white elephant, Mrs. S. White; plants and flowers, Miss M. Lettice; publicity, Mrs. L. Weaver.

Following the meeting tea was served and a presentation made to retiring president, Mrs. J. F. K. English, of an engraved silver tray in appreciation of her eight devoted years as president. Mrs. C. Riach also received a gift for her faithful work as retiring corresponding secretary.

Semi-Fitted Lines, No Collars, Short Sleeves Seen at Showing

By JANET WILSON
MONTREAL (CP)—The Association of Canadian Couturiers, "on its own" for the first time in its seven-year history, held its spring show Tuesday in the Montreal salon of Raoul-Jean Fouré.

The 11-member association first had been sponsored by the Primary Textiles Association and later by the Canadian Fabrics Foundation. The decision to strike out on its own was made, Mr. Fouré said, because some members felt handicapped in designing evening wear using only Canadian-made fabrics.

In the collections Tuesday, ten of the designers each showed six creations of which three were in imported fabrics and three in all-Canadian. Styles mainly followed the decrees from Paris for femininity, and flares, flounces and capes abounded.

Lines, for the most part, were semi-fitted. Seams were curved, skirts easy, sleeves short and collars non-existent.

Colors varied widely with the individual designer, but most had at least one outfit with either orange or yellow in it. Off-whites and grey-greens also were popular.

One of the most striking outfits in the show was by Angelina of Toronto and was in bright red, white and blue. Of textured wool, the back-buttoned bolero had long sleeves with wide horizontal stripes—vivid blue bordered in white—matching the stripe on the waist of the slim, matching sheath.

D'Anjou of Montreal, who showed only three outfits, used 30 yards of synthetic old-gold jersey to create an elaborate ball gown reminiscent of the 1800s. The ruffled caplet was trimmed with satin and lace and both it and the long, flounced skirt were removable to show a slim, low-necked satin sheath in white.

Tucked navy blue jersey is used by France Davies of Montreal in a daytime dress with a nautical theme, complete with middie collar. Subtle contrast of horizontal and vertical lines suggest a trim T-line.

Imaginative use of luxurious Arnel-cotton sailcloth in shades of oatmeal, gold and pale green, resulted in this elegant dress and coat costume by Raoul Jean Fouré of Montreal. A sleeveless sheath is beneath the reversible coat, whose split back seam gives effect of panels when in motion. Seen in the spring collection of the Canadian Association of Couturiers, in Montreal Tuesday.

Danger of Fatalistic View Pointed Out by Speaker

There is a growing tendency today to allow the "sometimes terrifying world situation to dwarf into insignificance the ordinary day to day problems," Mrs. Ralph T. Gilmore, told the Provincial Council of Women this morning.

In her report as provincial president given at opening session of the 43rd annual meeting of the Council in the Empress Hotel, Mrs. Gilmore pointed out the danger of taking a "fatalistic" view of the world today and of sinking into the attitude of "what's the use."

"We have the privilege of being either a doer or an on-looker," she said, "of being either active or passive. But can we afford the luxury of standing in the wings and merely watching the world go by?"

"Can we afford the luxury of not accepting the responsibility and opportunity for service to our community and country that is given us in our democracy. If we do not accept we could lose that privilege."

Mrs. Gilmore pointed out that the Council of Women is not a service organization.

"We rightly admire and regard with a measure of awe the endurance of our pioneers, but pioneer is a relative term—we are the pioneers of tomorrow."

"Today's rapid methods of communication have the unique power of producing instant history. We have an important part in making that history, just as our founders had."

She spoke with pride of a new council project to be started at this conference in co-operation with the extension department of the University of British Columbia, on the study of all aspects of Indian affairs. "We feel confident that future deliberations will be followed with great interest by many groups to our mutual benefit."

Sessions will continue this morning at the Empress Hotel and this afternoon delegates will attend the B.C. legislature. This evening's meeting will be presented to cabinet ministers at the Government Buildings.

Mrs. Scurrah Made Honorary Jaycee-Ette

At the recent Victoria Jaycee-Ettes meeting, guest speaker was Mrs. Nona Damaske, who recently returned from New York where she visited fashion houses.

Mrs. Percy Scurrah was guest of honor, and was made first honorary member in appreciation of her interest, help and support. She was presented with a silver spoon. Jaycee-Ette Bev Darnell also received a spoon as a going-away gift. She leaves soon to live in Winnipeg.

At another meeting, Jaycee-Ettes gathered at Maison Georges Beauty Salon when 38 members watched a demonstration of hair styling. Refreshments were served.

A rummage sale will be held by the James Bay Parish Guild on Saturday, March 3, at 9 a.m. in the hall, Niagara Street.

There is a touch of the daring in Canadian millinery collections for Spring '62. Crowns are higher and dramatized, with swirled organza or net. Braids are rough and textured, often combined with smooth straw fabrics to give a bold, woven effect.

Canadian Fabrics Play Large Part in Showings

In the Canadian Couturier showing in Montreal this week, Canadian fabrics were used extensively in the most outstanding fashions.

The lightest and airiest Canadian fabrics chosen for the designs included many fabrics in Arnel-jerseys, creamy crepes, featherweight flannels and batiste. Colors heightened the lady-like, romantic feeling of the new styles. The palest beiges, soft greens and golds, sunny yellows and muted prints were favorites.

Three Montreal designers chose jerseys for their collections. Raoul-Jean Fouré, used jersey of a silky finish, in a ombre stripe print for a graceful afternoon dress. Pleated from shoulder to hemline, it had a cleverly draped stand-away neckline.

D'Anjou used nylon jersey with a touch of glitter for a romantically demure evening gown he called "Golden Sunset." The lines of the voluminous skirt which fell from the hip-line of the fitted bodice, repeated in a short, flounced cover-up cape.

France Davies used a finely tucked jersey in navy for an elegant daytime dress with a nautical theme. Combining horizontal and vertical tucking, the softly shaped dress was topped by a middie collar.

Angelina of Toronto used white viscose crepe in a draped cocktail gown with diagonally tucked bodice, and loosely pleated skirt and full-length back panel.

Viscose crepe in cream and custard, was matched with flannel in identical shades by Olivia of Hamilton in three ensembles of her highly feminine presentation, rightly titled "My Fair Lady." Winner of the fashion industry's special Judy award for her contribution to Canadian design, she favored ruffles, bias cut, and scallops in her slim frocks; sweeping capes and semi-fit in the Arnel blend flannel coats.

Batiste in "buttercup" was used by Marie Antoinette of Montreal for a dainty two-piece dress. Wide pleats in skirt were outlined in an embroidery stitch, matching darts at the boat neckline. Shades of oatmeal, gold and pale green were featured in Fouré's elegant costume in Arnel-cotton sailcloth. The sleeveless sheath was topped by a reversible matching coat with a split back seam, giving the effect of panels in movement.

Greatest Men on Ice

MONTREAL (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker told last night of an Ottawa teacher who asked each pupil in her class to name the six greatest men in Canada. One lad in a corner was slow, and the teacher asked why.

"I've picked five of them," he said, "but I can't decide who should be in goal."

Pensions Law Today

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate gave final approval yesterday to four government welfare measures, including one to increase the federal old-age pension to $65 a month from $55 for all Canadians at age 70.

The other three measures provide for similar increases in blind and disability pensions and pensions for the needy between ages 65 and 69. All four have been passed by the Commons and will receive royal assent today.

Island MP Given Ship Story

OTTAWA (CP)—The vessel Ocean Master has been authorized to enter the Canadian coasting trade for six months on payment of customs duties prorated for that period, Revenue Minister Nowlan says.

Harry McQuillan (PC—Coxmoor-Alberni), who asked about a lobby to permit a Dutch vessel by that name customs-free entry, was told the vessel has been operating under Canadian registry for some time.

Pearson Promises Flag Two Years After Victory

OTTAWA (UPI)—Liberal leader Lester Pearson Wednesday promised a Liberal government would submit a distinctive national flag to Parliament for approval within two years of taking office.

Pearson told the Commons such a flag would not be mistaken for that of any other country.

"That flag would be the one national flag of Canada!" he shouted, over loud interruptions from the government benches.

He said he believed "firmly" the Union Jack or a symbol of this emblem should continue to be honored and flown on appropriate occasions.

Mr. Pearson said the flag issue should be the responsibility of the government and challenged Prime Minister Diefenbaker to give Parliament his views because "a decision would bring all Canadians more closely together."

Henry McQuillan (PC—Coxmoor-Alberni) said "there is no better flag than the one I see every morning flying from the Peace Tower"—the red ensign.

Most people in B.C., he added, wanted to see the Union Jack in any new flag design.

Single Tory Wants China Deal Secrets

OTTAWA (CP)—The government declined Wednesday to make public the documents involved in sales of wheat and barley to Red China.

A request to that effect was beaten 146 to 44 with one Conservative and the CCF-New Democratic Party group supporting the Liberals.

The lone Conservative was Maurice Allard of Sherbrooke, Quebec.

He said he doesn't believe China can pay for the wheat it has bought from Canada. He said he has information China will try to pay for the wheat by giving Canada tax-ties "with which China is ready to flood the international market."

Metric System May Soon Kill Gill and Rood

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—The days of the gill, the perch, the peck and the rood may be numbered. So, too, may be the future of the foot, the yard, the pound and the pint.

That's the warning in a special paper about the metric system prepared for next month's Canadian Conference on Education in Montreal.

As the world becomes more and more metric in character, the paper says, Canada may find itself "an uncomfortable small island clinging to an old system of weights and measures that is scarcely adequate for present-day commerce."

BASED ON SURVEY

The paper, written by Dr. J. T. Henderson of the National Research Council's division of applied physics in Ottawa, is based on conclusions drawn from a special survey of 70 "important, representative" Canadians.

Dr. Henderson said most people surveyed were in favor of Canada embarking on a study of the advisability of adopting metric units without waiting for Britain or the United States.

OUTSIDE CANADA

Those who favor waiting for the U.S. or Britain are industrial organizations with extensive business connections outside Canada, he said, adding:

"The fact that large sums of money would be involved in some industries if a complete change-over to metric system was made produces strong opposition by minority groups."

The report says 41 per cent of the world's population used the metric system in 1960. And out the window would go the gill, which is one-quarter of a pint; the perch, which is a rod, which is 5 1/2 yards; the peck, which is eight quarts; and the rood, which is one-quarter of an acre.

Blast Threw Workman 200 Feet

EDMONTON (CP) — The body of one workman was thrown more than 200 feet by a natural gas pipeline explosion near Edson, Alta., Jan. 16. RCMP told an inquest Wednesday into the death of eight Piggott Pipeline Limited employees.

W. J. Major, counsel for the estate of G. J. Rundle of Calgary, questioned one of the survivors of the 12-man crew testing a section of pipeline when the explosion occurred.

He asked Pierre Gagne of Shovel Lake, Man., whether he had ever attended a safety meeting while he was employed by Piggott.

Mr. Gagne said he had not. Mr. Major asked Mr. Gagne what his job was at the site, about 35 miles north of Edson, and what instructions he was given before the crew started to "blow the line down."

Mr. Gagne said: "We pretty well knew our jobs. We weren't given any special instructions."

Pole Saves Kitty Up Tree

A stray cat who "apparently just likes climbing trees," was flushed from her elevated observation point yesterday by an SPCA inspector armed with a "cat catcher."

The grey cat had reportedly been in the tree at 906 Market for the past week. She was ushered down with the aid of the long noose pole.

Red 'Tool' Fears For Husband's Life

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 45-year-old woman said yesterday she had been a tool of Communist agents in Hong Kong and added she feared her husband would be killed by Communist Chinese because of her testimony.

Mrs. Lili Chen, Vancouver hotel operator charged with conspiracy to bring Chinese into Canada illegally, said in police court she became a tool of the Communists because she was fearful for the life of her husband, a political prisoner in Inner Mongolia.

Mrs. Chen said she made contact with a Hong Kong storekeeper who succeeded in smuggling three of her six children out of Communist China to Hong Kong in September, 1957. She had hoped to have him smuggle her husband out as well.

She had been warned not to speak to anyone about her activities.

She said she flew to Edmonton on instructions from a Communist agent to pick up an illegal immigrant. She accepted money from Chinese in Vancouver for smuggling their friends and relatives into Canada from Hong Kong.

But all the money had been remitted to the Communist agent in Hong Kong.

Criticized Chaplain Stays Firm

OTTAWA (CP)—A naval chaplain has refused to admit criticism of the CBC attributed to him in a news report of a sermon he delivered last Sunday in an Ottawa church, Associate Defence Minister Sevigny said Wednesday.

He said in a Commons reply to Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) the department does not consider it necessary to take a stand on the matter.

Mr. Fisher asked Tuesday whether the department would take a stand with respect to criticism of the CBC attributed to Rev. J. E. Whelley, senior Roman Catholic chaplain at naval headquarters.

A news report of the sermon said Father Whelley called the CBC a "bunch of morons" for presenting what he called degenerate and degenerate television programs.

Students Seek Vote On Gaelic or French

CPR Ship Refitted For Towing

The former Princess of Albert is being fitted with bigger engines and towing gear for her new role as a towboat.

Renamed the Ocean Crown by her present owners, Canadian Tugboat Co., a division of Crown Zellerbach, the 175-foot vessel is at Victoria Machinery Depot, Bay Street plant. She was the last CPR vessel to serve the west coast of Vancouver Island.

A Nordberg diesel rated at 2,000 horsepower, which is being installed in place of the former 875-horsepower engine, will make the Ocean Crown the most powerful single-screw diesel tug on the B.C. coast, owners claim. She will be used to tow self-loading log barges from the Queen Charlottes.

We Won't Join Latins

Fiasco Chills Canada

By JOHN VIRTUE
OTTAWA (UPI)—One result of the recent hemispheric foreign ministers' conference in Punta del Este, Uruguay, has been a coolness in Canada toward membership in the Organization of American States.

There were reports, in fact, that the conduct and outcome of the conference have killed any chance of Canada joining the OAS in the near future.

'FIASCO' USED

Canada failed to share U.S. enthusiasm about the results of the conference which ousted Fidel Castro's Marxist-Leninist regime in Cuba from the inter-American family. The term "fiasco" was used by many leading newspapers to describe the meeting.

The position of Prime Minister Diefenbaker, while not stated publicly, has been that Canada should not become entangled in Latin American political squabbles.

ONE OR OTHER

It is felt Canada would be criticized by the U.S. or the Latin-American members if it voted in the OAS against one side or the other.

It was understood Diefenbaker believed the Punta del Este conference backed up this stand.

An official of the external affairs department was quoted as saying:

"It is a good thing we are not in that organization. The abortive invasion of Cuba diluted any support there might have been here to join the OAS and what has happened at Punta del Este dilutes it still further."

The lack of enthusiasm about the conference does not stem from sympathy for Castro—the government disapproves of his regime—but from the way the U.S. tried and failed to gain the support of all the members.

GREEN TOUR

Canada appeared headed for OAS membership after External Affairs Minister Green returned from a Latin-American tour two years ago. He started beefing up Canada's diplomatic missions in Latin America and Canada joined several OAS fringe organizations.

But worsening U.S.-Cuban relations and the assassination last year of Dominican strongman Rafael Trujillo gave Canada some second thoughts about involvement in Latin-American politics.

Annual Inspection

Senior Officer Visits Local CWAC Unit

Annual inspection of local members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps was made this week by Capt. F. K. Trusdale, senior CWAC officer in Western Command, Edmonton.

Capt. Trusdale is on her annual tour of western units. She inspected CWAC members of 155 Company, RCASC, and members attached to other Victoria units. About 100 CWAC members in Victoria are among the 1,400 in Western Command.

Sarantos, director of supply and transport, Ottawa, will take the salute at a passing-out parade of CWAC recruits at By Street Armory.

Inspect Meat Union Urges

WINNIPEG (CP)—The United Packinghouse Workers Union Wednesday urged that all meat sold in Manitoba be inspected by the federal government and bear the "Canada approved" stamp. The Manitoba provincial council of the union, in a brief to the legislature's committee on livestock marketing, said this was the best possible protection against the sale of contaminated meat.

sent with a white 10-gallon hat, symbol of a precious link with the old West.

But a pair of new residents trampled theirs Wednesday, undaunted by tradition.

They grabbed the 10-gallons from Ald. Don McIntosh, kicked them about the floor and jumped on them.

The new arrivals were a pair of year-old gorillas, captured in Africa, since transferred to The Netherlands and bought by the Calgary Zoological Society.

At the zoo, they will require and receive a pampering. Citizens of the city will be invited to pay $1 each toward their $6,900 cost, getting in return membership in the zoological society and the King Kong Club and a chance to suggest names for the pair.

The zoo hopes the boy and girl gorilla will some day see fit to raise a family.

Fun Over Negroes Took an Ugly Turn

Birth of a City—By J. T. Jones

It was fashionable to poke good-natured fun at Negroes in Victoria a century ago—but if any of them protested, the good-natured fun turned very ugly very quickly.

Black-faced minstrel shows were popular, and they had their outspoken critics even then. One show provoked a small riot—at least one Victorian appeared in court on a riot charge and was acquitted—and there were various lesser incidents.

Just when the heat of all this was fading, the officers of HMS Topaze announced they would present an "Ethiopian entertainment."

That brought on this letter: "Mr. Editor—Another insult has been cast upon the colored people... not by American rowdies, nor by the Governor, but by English officers..."

"Two or three months ago, a party of Frenchmen gave a concert. They said, colored men not admitted on their bills. What was the consequence? Why, the English people stayed away."

"Ethiopian entertainment—call it what you will... is nothing more nor less than a repetition of the disgusting Negro performances of such low scum as Mike Mitchell, Max Irwin and their like..."

"We are jeered, insulted, spat upon, as it were, by those who should raise us from the dust and wipe the scalding tears of slavery from our eyes. Colored men done their duty at Trafalgar. Colored men will do it here when called for... But, sir, we will not go to the concert on Monday and see our race insulted by British officers.—COLORED MAN."

Well, that sounds like a reasonable if heated protest, but there were those who apparently considered it a disgraceful attempt to stir up trouble.

One letter-writer, signing himself "Simon Pure," declared "Colored Man" couldn't possibly be a Negro.

"He is a part of the same clique in this town who have been thrashed, snubbed and defeated in every attempt to thrust their obnoxious and proscriptive ideas of political and conventional policy upon Englishmen, and now, as a last effort, they resort to force to effect their ends, distinguished alike for cowardice and meanness..."

"They are playing out very fast, and in general will leave here with exhausted purses, and, what is far worse, very questionable characters."

Another letter said that "such a trashy and uncalled-for complaint should be denounced in the severest terms." This observation was followed by... apparently to indicate that the severest terms were unprintable.

In the long run, fortunately,

Shumiatcher Application Dismissed

REGINA (CP) — Chief Justice A. H. Bence Wednesday dismissed an application by Dr. M. C. Shumiatcher of Regina to have the courts quash a charge of conspiracy to defraud.

Dr. Shumiatcher was charged jointly last month with Walter W. Luboff of Saskatoon and Thomas C. Fawcett of Ottawa.

The charge was laid Jan. 3 following an investigation into the operation of Columbia Metals Exploration Company by the Saskatchewan Securities Commission. Dr. Shumiatcher was solicitor for the company, Mr. Fawcett was a vice-president and Mr. Luboff was president.

Sailor, 20 Fined $20

A 20-year-old sailor from HMCS Beacon Hill was fined $20 in city police court yesterday when he admitted being a minor in possession of liquor.

City prosecutor Angus Smith told Magistrate William Ostler that Cluett was in possession of a 28-ounce bottle of wine when police questioned him.

OLD DISEASE

India's Uttar Pradesh state in 1961 had 114,000 leprosy sufferers, compared with 84,000 in 1957.

the clique that "Simon Pure" so hated has won out—more or less.

Amor de Cosmos, editor of The Daily British Colonist, took no sides on this issue. He was busy arguing for incorporation of Victoria as a city, accusing the colonial government of false promises and jibing at the grandiose titles under consideration for civic dignitaries.

Cabin Fever In Yukon Gets Cure

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — This Yukon capital is preparing for a sordid rendezvous this weekend, advertised as a sure cure for "cabin fever"—a northern ailment that comes from staring too long at the same four walls.

This year's revival will feature dog races, ski, snowshoe and tea bolting contests, a rifle shoot and a women's hockey game.

Two incorporation bills had failed to pass the legislature on one pretext or another, and he had none too high hopes for the next one.

"The different branches of government having rehearsed the plot several times to bamboozle the town out of a simple and inexpensive mode of managing its own affairs, will, of course, pass the blame from one to another... but it won't do. The game is up." Sure enough, next session, the bill came through.

More mundanely, State Street got its first paving—macadam—laid by the chain gang and neatly, too.

There was talk in the North American Provinces (Ontario and Quebec) of the union that was to come four years later and create Canada.

A man in Euclid, Ohio, woke with a sense of suffocation and discovered he had swallowed his false teeth, "crescent shaped, hooked at each end, and having three teeth set at irregular intervals." The case, said the report, "is one of great difficulty."

Screaming 'Judas' Jailed

NELSON (CP)—Fred David off 38, convicted terrorist, was called a "Judas" by Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan Wednesday and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

In all Davidoff, Sons of Freedom Doukhobor and father of five, will serve 28 years. The 20-year term is for blowing up government machinery at Winlaw.

He will also serve eight years for bombing a railway track at Thrums. Mr. Justice Sullivan said Davidoff was a dangerous man and should be isolated in prison and denied all visiting privileges.

A man of tremendous bulk, Davidoff refused to stand while the judge passed sentence. He continually slammed his fists on the prisoner's box and shook his fists at the judge and court.

Mr. Justice Sullivan said he regarded Davidoff as "a dangerous man" who had played the role of Judas in betraying companions and who has "blasphemed Almighty God."

SHOT BACK

"It is the devil in you I have blasphemed," Davidoff shot back.

On Tuesday Davidoff went berserk in the witness box, screaming epithets at the judge, jury and Crown Prosecutor T. G. Bowen-Colthurst.

DAYS NUMBERED

He called Mr. Justice Sullivan a "murderer" and told the jury their "days are numbered too." He called the prosecutor a "two-legged animal."

Davidoff formerly was a member of the fraternal council, the ruling, policy-making body of the radical Freedomite sect.

University Entrance Now Tougher

KINGSTON (CP) — Applicants seeking entry to degree courses in the arts and science faculty at Queen's University next fall must have attained an average of 65 per cent in their final Grade 13 examinations, the university announced yesterday.

In an interview, Principal Dr. J. A. Corry said, "until this year, students who had an average of 60 per cent were assured of admission, but now, students with averages between 60 and 64 per cent will be considered on their individual merits."

"Universities will find it necessary to become more selective to ensure the best-qualified students get the available places."

Licence Date Is Extended

EDMONTON (CP) — The provincial government has extended to April 30 the date for expiration of motor vehicle licences. Vehicle registrations ordinarily expire at the end of March. New licences will be on sale March 1.

20th Century Challenge Is Health A Public Utility?

By G. E. MORTIMORE
Third of a Series

CANADIANS pay roughly $1,500,000,000 a year for personal and public health.

Some of this expense is shared among the taxpayers. The federal government pays doctors' and hospital bills for most Indians, for soldiers, sailors and airmen, and for some veterans.

Health programs differ from province to province. In British Columbia, numerous hard-up people, including needy pensioners who qualify under means tests, have their bills for medicines and treatment paid out of tax money. Public health measures like sanitary inspection, and immunization are tax-financed, the burden being divided among federal, provincial and local governments.

Bills Paid

Most Canadians now have their hospital bills paid (except for small co-insurance charges) from the treasure chests of the provincial and federal governments, to which citizens contribute in premiums and taxes.

Saskatchewan and B.C. began hospital insurance; now all provinces have it.

But millions of people pay for doctors and medicines without any direct help. Some of them are protected by commercial health insurance or by non-profit medical insurance. (Seventy-five per cent of British Columbians, 84 per cent of all Canadians, have some kind of prepaid medical care.)

Cost Shared?

Others, who can not or will not get health insurance, are burdened with medical expenses for years.

Should the cost of all medical services be shared, as hospital expenses are? Who should pay the doctor, and how should the payments be made?

These simple questions lead to others which are not so simple. Is health a commodity like bread or apples, which you buy from your own bank roll? Or is health a public utility like roads and schools, to be financed from taxes? Or is it a mixture of both?

All Benefit

The government of Great Britain maintains that health is a public utility or a public right. All citizens, and most visitors to the country, receive medical, nursing and hospital care, dentistry, drugs and glasses through the National Health Service.

These benefits are not "free," but are paid for out of the general revenue, to which all taxpayers contribute. There are small charges for prescriptions (about 40 cents) and for glasses and false teeth, to discourage over-use.

Canada and the United States, until recently, have looked upon personal health care chiefly as something which citizens had to pay for on their own.

Canada Moves

"Canada and the United States are the only two countries in the 'civilized' world which do not have some form of government-assisted health care for all the people," said Dr. John F. McCree, dean of the University of British Columbia medical school, in a recent speech.

Canada last year started nationwide hospital insurance and began to move toward paying at least part of everybody's medical bills with tax money. Saskatchewan, the first province to launch hospital insurance, has framed a medical insurance law but the doctors oppose its terms. In B.C., a 1956 health insurance law failed when doctors refused to work it.

The United States has many voluntary groups for sharing hospital and medical expenses, but no nationwide hospital or health plan.

All political parties in Canada say they want some kind of health insurance. Medical SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Schools were closed and more than 10,000 people, young and old, sniffled, sneezed, coughed or stayed abed Wednesday as the influenza epidemic strengthened its grip in this area.

Throughout this area some 65 elementary and high schools were closed. About one-third of the population of 27,000 here has been hit by the virus.

Castro Star Dimmed?

HAVANA (UPI) — Communist leader Carlos Rafael Rodriguez yesterday replaced Premier Fidel Castro as president of the all-powerful Cuban Agrarian Reform Institute.

Although the change was announced without fanfare by the cabinet in a brief statement published in the official press, it created a sensation.

Much of Castro's power has stemmed from the all-embracing authority vested in him as head of the institute.

One of the top five in the Communist hierarchy in Cuba, Rodriguez has been an openly avowed Communist since the middle 1930s.

Cuba was formally ousted from the Organization of American States yesterday. The expulsion was originally ordered by the American foreign ministers at Punta del Este, Uruguay.

'Varsity Budget Cut Could Be Crippling

A $330,000 cut in the requested 1962 operating budget for Victoria University may prove crippling during the crucial early stages of expansion on the Gordon Head campus, the Colonist learned yesterday.

Principal Dr. W. H. Hickman said the resulting lack of funds will force cancellation of several new academic courses as well as a decision not to hire additional faculty members and purchase new equipment.

Victoria University Council, following a meeting this week, expressed "grave concern" over the budget cuts made by the provincial government.

'Landlords Grab Pension Boost'

NANAIMO (CP) — President Joe Sutton of Nanaimo Old Age Pensioners Association said Wednesday he is writing a protest to Prime Minister Diefenbaker over home rental increases that followed in the wake of Ottawa's announcement of old age pension hikes.

"Benefit from the pension increase is being wiped out before we even receive it," Mr. Sutton said. "The action of some landlords who have already raised rents means that other things will also go up and our little pension boost will disappear."

Planes Buzzed Red Jets Sweep Air Lane

One of the planes involved was a light RAF transport aircraft carrying Sir Christopher Steel, Britain's ambassador to West Germany.

Wednesday marked the fourth time in a week the Soviet controller at the Berlin air safety centre had informed the three Western controllers he wanted to reserve space in the air corridors below certain heights and between certain times for Soviet military flights. Each request was rejected.

The captain of a Pan American airliner flying to Berlin said he saw a Soviet jet fighter close behind a British European Airways Viscount, which was going in the opposite direction. The British captain said later he had not noticed the jet.

Bonner, Fulton To Meet

Power problems and Douthett affairs head the list of topics to be discussed in Ottawa Friday between Attorney-General Robert Bonner and Justice Minister Davis Fulton.

Premier Bennett advised the legislature yesterday that Mr. Bonner had gone East to discuss the Douthett problem following the wave of terrorism in the Kootenays.

But observers believe that the long-simmering Ottawa-B.C. fight over power development in the province will be uppermost in the minds of the two legal officials.

The federal and provincial authorities have not had a face-to-face meeting on the power issue since May of last year.

Speed-Up Bid Extra Road To Ferries Demanded

A second Patricia Bay Highway for through traffic to the B.C. government ferry terminal at Swartz Bay was called for yesterday by John Tisdale (SC-Saanich).

The present highway, he added, should be used by "domestic" traffic to and from points along the road while the new through-road could perhaps run parallel to it.

FASTER TRAVEL

"I hope the minister of highways will view with urgency something along these lines," stated Mr. Tisdale, speaking in the budget debate. "The new highway could perhaps tie into the Blanshard Street extension."

Such a through highway, he said, would allow traffic going to and coming from the ferry terminal to travel quickly.

ONLY TWO

The member was critical of the fact that the Patricia Bay Highway relocation — which was made necessary by extension of airport runways — was two lanes only.

"It should have been four," he said. "No one can pass the buses and trucks coming off the ferries once they get on the road. Four lanes would allow a passing lane on either side of the road. I trust the minister will facilitate this at the earliest convenience." — (AP Photofax)

Grim Vendetta In Algeria Takes Big Toll

Bloody Riots Follow Explosions

ORAN, Algeria (Reuters) — At least 33 persons were killed and 86 injured in Algeria Wednesday as the blood-soaked territory suffered through one of the most violent days of the year.

The death toll was the highest in Algeria since Jan. 2, when 38 were killed.

ORAN ROCKED

Communal violence raged through the streets of Oran and Algiers. Algeria's two chief cities, with the Moslem and European communities locked in a bloody vendetta.

Forty-four plastic bomb explosions rocked the Moslem quarter of Oran and sparked a chain of terror that claimed at least 33 lives.

HOUSES LEVELLED

The explosions boomed through the Moslem suburb of Lamur as dawn broke, leveling newly-built small houses and setting fires that blazed uncontrolled through the day.

Rioting Moslems forced back policemen and firemen attempting to deal with the damage and poured into the European quarters, sacking and burning stores and stoning cars.

GENERAL'S SON DEAD

Nine rioters died and eight were wounded in one clash with French security forces during which a French army lieutenant was killed.

He was Lieut. Philippe Jacquot, son of Gen. Pierre Jacquot, commander-in-chief of NATO allied forces for central Europe.

BULLETS SPRAYED

In Algiers, an outbreak of Moslem-European terror was touched off when a car drove at high speed through one of the main streets of the Belcourt suburb, spraying machine-gun bullets from a window.

The attack was followed by the murder of two Europeans in Belcourt, a mixed Moslem-European suburb. The Europeans were shot by a Moslem gunman.

MOSLEMS ATTACKED

Word of the murder brought Europeans pouring from their houses.

They rampaged through the streets, attacking Moslems indiscriminately.

The demonstrations took place as an Algeria-wide strike of European electricity and gas workers hit France's North African territory. The strike marked the funeral in Algiers of a utility worker killed by a Moslem gunman Monday.

Nikita Told:

Summit Depends On Talks

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan told Soviet Premier Khrushchev Wednesday they will be willing to meet him at Geneva after the disarmament conference makes some progress.

Their messages, delivered in Moscow by the American and British ambassadors, brought to the verge of certainty the prospect of a summit meeting by the Big Three — and perhaps other heads of government — within the next few months.

TURNDOWN

Strictly speaking, the Kennedy-Macmillan reply was a turndown of Khrushchev's Feb. 10 proposal that government heads themselves attend at the start of the 18-nation general disarmament conference opening in Geneva March 14.

In Moscow, diplomatic quarters expected Khrushchev to attend the conference opening despite the Kennedy-Macmillan turndown.

BENT WAY

The Western chiefs stuck to their original call for a Geneva conference launching by their foreign ministers as the best way to make progress on preliminary details.

But having made this point, Macmillan said, "I am not so much concerned with routine procedures and arguments as with results."

Kennedy said: "I do not mean to question the utility or perhaps even the necessity of a meeting of heads of government."

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the House of Commons yesterday that a reply has been prepared to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's call for a heads-of-government disarmament conference in Geneva next month.

Mr. Diefenbaker was expected to join President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Macmillan in rejecting the Soviet leader's call.

Now Russians Try To Out-Do Scots

LONDON (Reuters) — The Soviet Union laid claim Wednesday to not one but two "Loch Ness monsters."

Moscow radio said the first monster was seen by Soviet geologists in a lake 3,500 feet above sea level in eastern Siberia.

They claimed the monster had a head more than six feet in size and a 20-foot long body that had something like a fin on it.

The second monster was said to have been seen by a party of geographers in a lake in the mountains on the border of Soviet Central Asia and China.

Looking like a log moving through the water "very rapidly," the scientists said the part above the water seemed to have a tail.

Park Sites Chosen

Tourism Ministry Rejected

DUNCAN—Recreation Minister Westwood says he is not in favor of a "ministry of tourism" as recently suggested by the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce.

"I cannot agree anything would be gained by changing the name of my department," he wrote.

As proof of the department's proper functioning as far as tourism is concerned, he drew attention to the fact B.C. "expanded last year at twice the national rate."

He said a sharp increase of 1,000,000 visitors is expected this year, topping last year's tourist industry total of $115,000,000 by another $45,000,000.

Improvements Cut

Land Values Up By Million-Plus

PORT ALBERNI — The city's land assessments have increased by $1,189,398, to $4,164,673, but there is a substantial drop in improvement assessments due to a survey of industrial plants by the assessment commissioner's office.

This information was contained in a report from City Assessor Joe Ruisean, who gave assessment figures for improvements as $58,231,060 as compared with $58,533,202 in 1961.

INCREASE EXPLAINED

He pointed out the increase in land assessment is mainly due to reassessment which showed increased market values since 1956 when the previous assessment was made.

Now that up-to-date land values have been set, Mr. Ruisean said, work will start on a complete reassessment of improvements in the city. He asked for authority to obtain help from an improvement evaluator from the commissioner's office for about one week.

He said some time would have to be spent in the area recently added to the city to bring assessments in this section in line with others.

Council authorized additional help to complete the project during the current year.

THE ALBERNIS — Two sites are favored by councils of the twin cities for development as camping areas in a joint project planned to overcome a shortage of tourist accommodation.

Council members and representatives of Alberni Board of Trade and Port Alberni Chamber of Commerce inspected proposed sites Sunday.

They agreed land on the Port Alberni side of Rogers Creek, opposite the end of Eighth Avenue, and the Somasa River Park above Paper Mill Dam would be the most suitable areas.

COST ESTIMATES

Works superintendents of the two cities are being asked to prepare cost estimates for development of the areas.

Alberni spokesmen said: "Expenses should be limited to the bare minimum and development should be of a type useful for general parks purposes in the future."

NITE NEEDS ROAD

Mayor Loran Jordan said the Rogers Creek site would require a road, a water line from Port Alberni's system and a small amount of clearing. The alternative site would require even less work as an access road is already developed.

Aid. E. L. Hammer suggested Recreation Minister Westwood be asked for government assistance in camp site construction because of the delay in development of provincial sites.

ADVISED CHAMBER

Mr. Westwood, meanwhile, has advised the chamber of commerce his department does not intend to expand camping facilities at Stamp Falls park.

He said the park is too far removed from swimming areas, lakeside picnic grounds, saltwater fishing and other Alberni Valley attractions to warrant extension of the camping area.

Drop Into Sewer Hole Breaks Man's Pelvis

COURTENAY — A six-month layoff faces Ronald McKim of Courtenay, who broke his pelvis when buried up to his neck for 20 minutes in a sewer excavation cave-in. Cribbing had been removed from the trench to make digging easier when the cave-in occurred.

Previous cave-ins prompted posting of special watchman Harry Edwards to watch for falling earth. His shout warned McKim and caused him to stand upright. Without the warning he might have died.

Crofton Mill Receives Safety Prize

CROFTON — Approximately 200 employees and senior officials of B.C. Forest Products assembled at Crofton pulp mill Tuesday for a presentation ceremony of safety awards won by the company.

B.C. Forest Products president T. N. Beaupre gave the most significant award, "Safest Mill in Canada," to E. G. Wilson, assistant manager of the pulp mill. He congratulated the men for the record of 356 accident-free days with a total of 1,240,000 man-hours since August, 1960.

FIRST TIME WENT

It was the first time since the award was introduced in 1928 that a pulp or paper mill west of Winnipeg won. Other awards presented were: CISA award to T. P. Church, a gold award to pulp mill manager D. H. Baker and National Safety Council award to J. F. Steed.

As to the planned $20,000,000 paper mill at Crofton, officials said engineers are planning the project. All equipment will be Canadian-made except for the English-made paper machine.

Mr. Beaupre said completion of the paper mill will not end the growth of the firm.

Landry Burial Friday

PORT ALBERNI — Prayers will be said at 8 p.m. today in Stevens' funeral chapel for Wilfred Landry, 63, who died in West Coast General Hospital Tuesday, with burial Friday.

Mr. Landry, whose home was at 715 Second Avenue South, lived here for 20 years. He was employed as a carpenter and was a member of Branch 55, Royal Canadian Legion, and of the local Knights of Columbus.

He leaves his wife, Jeanette; three sons, Lionel, Maurice and George; two daughters, Terry and Evelyn; four grandchildren, all of Port Alberni, and three brothers in Prince Albert, Sask.

Mass will be said Friday at 10 a.m. in Holy Family Church.

MONTREAL — Jean Marchand, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, said he has asked Cuban Ambassador Americo Cruz and External Affairs Minister Howard Green to intervene to prevent the execution of several Cuban labor leaders.

Experts Say:

Beards Help Celebrations

A formula for easing Victoria along the rocky road to centennialhood was offered to a group of city businessmen last night by the John D. Rogers Producing Co.

And the key to the formula, said company vice-president Wayne Lemmon, is a plain, old-fashioned beard.

"Beards," Mr. Lemmon explained, "turn ordinary citizens into boosters and, by their very existence, ensure a high degree of participation in centennial celebrations."

EFFECTIVE VEHICLE

He urged centennial-minded citizens to plumb the psychology of the beard as it relates to celebrations. "It is a most effective participation vehicle so effective that I have seen celebrations fail when beard growing was voted down by a committee."

Ranking close to beards, Mr. Lemmon said, is a good dose of history.

SURE-FIRE HIT

"History, gentlemen, is box office. When Hollywood wants a sure-fire hit, it turns the cameras on history. If you want your centennial to be a resounding success, you must do the same."

With operating expenses of Mountain View home for elderly men spiralling, and the number of patients steadily declining, city welfare administrator William Hooson yesterday offered new figures to bolster his contention the home should be closed.

He explained Mountain View Home—licensed originally as a boarding place for elderly men on city assistance—had become, in fact, a hospital.

"We can't carry on the way we've been doing because many of the men have been receiving the equivalent of hospital care, even though the home isn't licensed to provide it."

For a home such as Mountain View, the welfare costs are divided three ways—50 per cent paid by Ottawa, 40 per cent by B.C. and 10 per cent by the municipality.

In the case of a boarding home such as Mountain View, the allowable rate is $85 per man per month. The municipality must pay all costs beyond that.

Big Difference

If Mountain View was operating within the stipulated rate, cost to the city for each man would be a mere $8.50 a month. This, multiplied by the 25 patients and then by 12 months would mean an annual bill of only $2,550.

At present, it costs the city $170 to keep a man in Mountain View for one month. Applying the formula above, net charge per man per month on city coffers is $93.50.

Hence, the home's annual operating deficit of $22,000. It is here, said the welfare administrator, the trouble starts. Many of the men in Mountain View require complete hospital care and should therefore be assigned to private hospitals rather than boarding homes.

While the monthly rate for private hospitals is $195 per man, the city's share of the cost is only 10 per cent of this, or $19.50, under the welfare cost-sharing formula.

If this is calculated on the basis of the number of patients in Mountain View, the incongruity of the situation becomes evident.

First Concern

The 25 elderly men could be provided with proper, licensed hospital care for only $5,850 a year as compared with the whopping $22,000 now.

Mr. Hooson said he wasn't appealing for closure of the home on the basis of economy alone.

"My first concern, as a social worker, is for the care of the old men in Mountain View. If they are placed in private hospitals, they will be given the care they really need and all of the necessary facilities will be provided."

"If the move was not in the best interests of the men," he said, "any economy would be irrelevant. It's just that they can be looked after better in a hospital."

If care of the 25 aged men cannot be provided either

legally or economically at Mountain View, then the need for other accommodations is evident, Mr. Hooson contended. And, he concluded, construction of new facilities—including the 67-bed Glen Warran Hospital scheduled for completion shortly—suggests the men will have little trouble obtaining first-class accommodations.

Miss Mary Lynch, only woman on the five-member National Parole Board, will visit Victoria Tuesday and Wednesday. She will visit William Head prison, address the John Howard Society and Canadian Club and pay a call to Attorney-General Bonner.

Can't Win Every Time

DUNCAN—Intruders who broke into the local office of a Nanaimo newspaper merely had to pull open a desk drawer to not $75.

But at Duncan Garage thieves smashed a washroom window, smashed open two doors, crawled through a stockroom, finally gained entry to the office and got $1.

DUNCAN—Directors of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce do not want to commit themselves on whether off-track betting and lotteries should be legalized in this country and the Canadian Chamber will be so advised.

Directors felt it was not fair to come to any other conclusion without knowing the attitude of all local chamber members.

A letter from the national organization said $25,000,000 in spent annually by Canadian people on the Irish sweepstakes alone.

COURTENAY—Two years of fund raising was rewarded by a cinder track for high school students when the district school board announced a new $500 grant.

Total contribution by the school board is $2,000, which together with $2,000 raised by students would pay for the track.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Promotional word during fire prevention week last week, has won the Campbell River volunteer fire department a first prize.

Other Island News On Pages 6 and 7

COURTENAY—A $1,000 increase in rent for the Cumberland Recreation Institute's gymnasium facilities has been asked in a brief presented by Bill Henderson and James Faulds to the district school board.

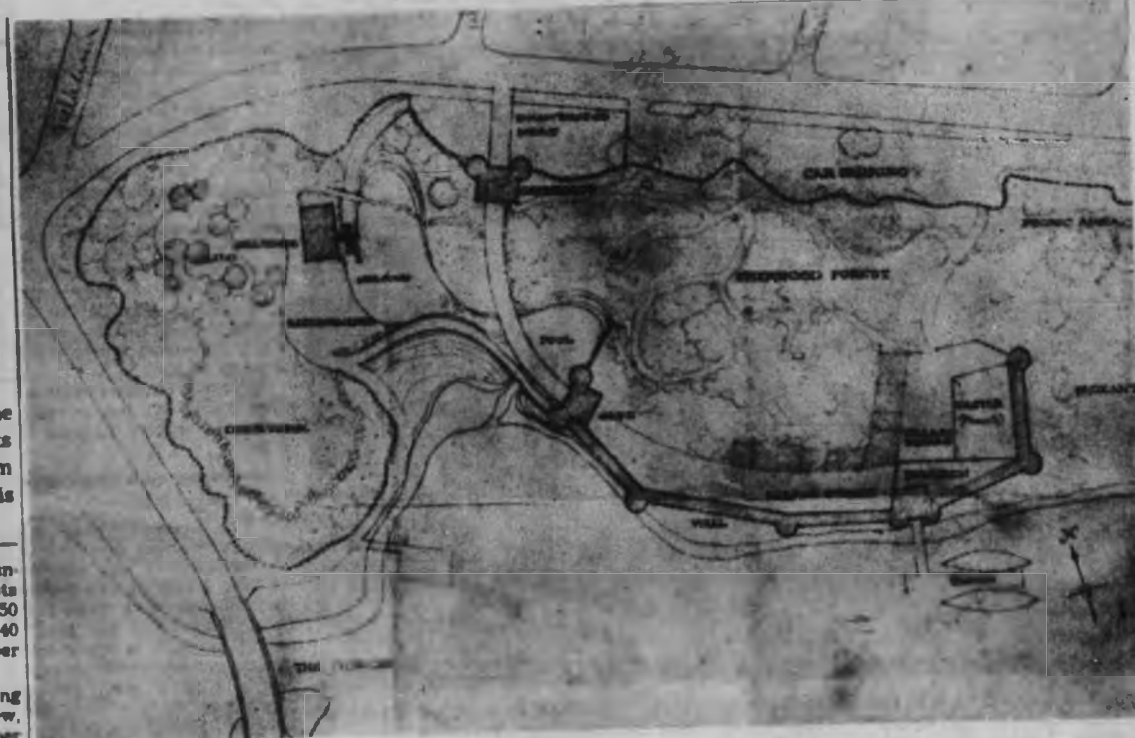

The brief stated Cumberland High School, which has no gym, is renting the facilities for $2,000 a year and school activities account for 75 per cent of the hall's total use.

LADYSMITH—The Noel Coward comedy "Billie Smith Little Theatre" goes on Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Little Theatre. Curtain time is 15 minutes earlier than previously announced.

DUNCAN—A local resident for five years, Joseph Rushton Jameson had died at Cherry Point Lodge, Cobble Hill, in his 81st year. He was a chartered accountant before retirement. Funeral service will be held in Hirst Chapel at 2 p.m. Thursday.

NANAIMO—Leo Nimsch, New Democratic Party-CCF member of the legislature for Cranbrook, will address a public meeting in the CCF Hall on the evening of Feb. 23.

Mervin D. Boldrick of Duncan was fined $250 and had his driver's licence suspended for six months in Victoria police court yesterday for impaired driving.

Sherwood on the Gorge?

The Sherwood Forest of Robin Hood and his merry men may be recreated in a wooded area fronting onto the Gorge east of the Gorge bridge at Tillicum.

A $300,000 development is proposed for the parkland featuring drawbridges and moats, dungeons, a village square, Nottingham Castle, a pageant park with outdoor theatre, a millhouse and mill pond, a deer park and barbecue pits for picnic cooking.

The wooded area stretches along

Gorge Road in Saanich from Millgrove to Tillicum. It is owned by Victoria but has never been dedicated for park use.

Two Viking-type longboats are also included in plans, each capable of carrying 50 to 60 passengers from a dock in the Inner Harbor to a landing in the Gorge, outside the massive castle wall.

Alternative approach would be through the main gate on Gorge Road with a drawbridge and a fanfare of trumpets to welcome guests. Visitors would be required to change their Canadian or United States currency for special Sherwood Forest coins, worth 25 cents each. Vancouver businessman Milton Tisdale, who is a prime mover in the proposal, said last night one of the major attractions would be the outdoor theatre.

He envisioned symphony concerts, little theatre plays and ethnic group folk dancing as possible entertainments to use the theatre.

Negotiations with city parks committee for a lease on the land are under way.

Saanich Advised:

Compel That Resort To Purchase Water

Saanich public works committee has recommended council oppose granting of a domestic water licence to a Cordova Bay resort.

The provincial water rights branch last fall advised the municipality that McMoran's Cordova Bay Ltd. had applied for a licence to take water from a spring on its own property.

The water is used for both domestic and irrigation purposes.

Main objection raised by the public works committee is that the resort has closed off three connections to the municipal water main, and with them the only source of revenue beyond frontage charges totalling $32.50 a year.

Nevertheless, as Reeve Stanley Murphy pointed out, water users throughout the municipality are sharing the cost of providing emergency water supply to the resort, which includes a shopping centre and restaurant.

Hydrants, for fire protection at the resort, are provided and would approximately double the water payments by the resort.

Coun. Harry Todd said the private spring-fed water system had functioned successfully for almost 40 years. He argued it should be permitted to continue, provided the operators agreed to pay the municipality's minimum water charge.

The committee was told this system.

Land Office To Reopen In New Home

Another link with Victoria's past will be cut Friday when the land registry office closes its doors at 3 p.m. in the old courthouse.

When it opens again at 10 a.m. Monday, the office will be carrying on business in the new law courts building, chief clerk R. S. Gray announced yesterday. Office records and equipment will be moved during the weekend.

Island Booth at Seattle Fair Expected to Be Dropped Today

By TED PULFORD

Plans for a booth publicizing Vancouver Island at the Seattle World's Fair are expected to go out the window this afternoon at a special meeting of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau's board of directors.

A meeting of the bureau's out-venue finance committee, which hammered out the first draft of a budget Monday, agreed to drop the $57,000 proposal, but a final decision won't be made before this afternoon's meeting.

While neither the finance committee nor bureau commissioner William Hawkins would comment on the decision—Informed sources in the Island tourist industry agreed the booth plan would likely be squelched.

Main reason, it is understood, is that heavy advertising campaign already planned would make the Island booth redundant.

Camille's Valentine Poem Thanks Gallant Bennett

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

FRIENDLY PERSUASION: Premier Bennett didn't forget Valentine's Day yesterday.

He sent flowers to the desks of the three women M.L.A.s—Minister Without Portfolio Mrs. Bessie Brown (who was away ill); Mrs. Lois Haggan (NDP-CCF—Grand Forks-Greenwood) and Mrs. Camille Mather (NDP-CCF—Delta).

Both Mrs. Haggan and Mrs. Mather thanked the premier just before adjournment yesterday.

And Mrs. Mather offered a poetic Valentine in return. She read this offering to the premier:

"Before I'll be your Valentine You must become a friend of mine. To win the heart of this NDP You must come over and sit with me!"

END OF THE AFFAIR: As a result of the plate full of dummy duck presented to Alec Mather in the legislative restaurant Tuesday, restaurateur M. P. Loughhead warned the waitresses that enough was enough.

"There must be no more practical jokes," he told them yesterday.

The waitresses could be forgiven a smile as Mr. Loughhead passed on to other business.

Someone had pinned a large paper cutout of a cupid onto the back of his suit coat.

NOT AND COLD: Here's the latest gimmick—deep-fried ice cream!

Agriculture Minister Frank Nicholson said he'd had some in an interior restaurant not so long ago and that it was delicious. It is something akin to baked Alaska.

Apparently a scoop of ice cream is dipped in batter, then dropped into a deep-fryer.

"It is served with onions," inquired NDP-CCF leader Robert Strachan.

"Silly as it sounds, it's very palatable," said Mr. Richter.

SORRY FOR THE INCONvenience: A barrage of printed protests against any legislation which would outlaw trading stamps in B.C. is still being fired at all M.L.A.s.

Customers of the supermarkets which have the achieved merely have to sign their names to a protest printed on a postcard and addressed to individual members.

The supermarkets even pay for the postage stamps.

But a number of customers have been doing the twist.

They've crossed out certain parts of the protest and inserted other words which show they're dead opposed to the scheme. Apparently the supermarkets don't know they're paying to help outlaw the scheme.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: Whenever Opposition leader Robert Strachan makes a major speech in the legislature, the New Democratic Party-CCF members wear red roses in their lapels.

The roses, we found out yesterday, are fakes.

But it certainly makes for efficiency with economy.

Members put the roses in the lapels just before entering the legislative chamber and then, after the sitting, return them to a tray in their caucus room... ready for the next grand performance!

JUST THE FACTS, MA'AM!: Social Crediters brag theirs is the government which keeps you informed.

Health Minister Eric Martin demonstrated this yesterday when a reporter inquired about the government's submission to the sittings of the Royal Commission on health services here next week.

Here is a full verbatim account of the conversation.

Reporter: "When will we be able to get the brief?"

Minister: "I can't say."

Reporter: "But the government will have a brief?"

Minister: "I can't say."

Reporter: "Why not?"

Minister: "Well... er... well, we're working very hard."

Reporter: "Come now, surely the government will present a brief to the royal commission?"

Minister: "I'm not going to say one way or the other."

Mr. Martin, incidentally, was the same minister who sparked one of the bitterest flare-ups of the session a year ago when he refused to file a report until after the legislative had approved estimates of expenditures to implement recommendations in the report.

Is Health A Public Utility?

By G. E. MORTIMORE
Third of a Series

CANADIANS pay roughly $1,500,000,000 a year for personal and public health.

Some of this expense is shared among the taxpayers. The federal government pays doctors' and hospital bills for most Indians, for soldiers, sailors and airmen, and for some veterans.

Health programs differ from province to province. In British Columbia, numerous hard-up people, including needy pensioners who qualify under means tests, have their bills for medicines and treatment paid out of tax money. Public health measures like sanitary inspection, and immunization are tax-financed, the burden being divided among federal, provincial and local governments.

Bills Paid

Most Canadians now have their hospital bills paid (except for small co-insurance charges) from the treasure chests of the provincial and federal governments, to which citizens contribute in premiums and taxes.

Saskatchewan and B.C. began hospital insurance; now all provinces have it.

But millions of people pay for doctors and medicines without any direct help. Some of them are protected by commercial health insurance or by non-profit medical insurance. (Seventy-five per cent of British Columbians, 54 per cent of all Canadians, have some kind of prepaid medical care.)

Cost Shared?

Others, who can not or will not get health insurance, are burdened with medical expenses for years.

Should the cost of all medical services be shared, as hospital expenses are? Who should pay the doctor, and how should the payments be made?

These simple questions lead to others which are not so simple. Is health a commodity like bread or apples, which you buy in the market and pay for from your own bank roll? Or is health a public utility like roads and schools, to be financed from taxes? Or is it a mixture of both?

All Benefit

The government of Great Britain maintains that health is a public utility or a public right. All citizens, and most visitors to the country, receive medical, nursing and hospital care, dentistry, drugs and glasses through the National Health Service.

These benefits are not "free," but are paid for out of the general revenue, to which all taxpayers contribute. There are small charges for prescriptions (about 40 cents) and for glasses and false teeth, to discourage over-use.

Canada and the United States, until recently, have looked upon personal health care chiefly as something which citizens had to pay for on their own.

Canada Moves

"Canada and the United States are the only two countries in the 'civilized' world which do not have some form of government-assisted health care for all the people," said Dr. John F. McCreary, dean of the University of British Columbia medical school, in a recent speech.

Canada last year started nationwide hospital insurance and began to move toward paying at least part of everybody's medical bills with tax money. Saskatchewan, the first province to launch hospital insurance, has framed a medical insurance law but the doctors oppose its terms. In B.C., a 1956 health insurance law failed when doctors refused to work it.

The United States has many voluntary groups for sharing hospital and medical expenses, but no nationwide hospital or health plan.

All political parties in Canada say they want some kind of health insurance. Medical

U.S. Envoy Shot Dead In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (CP)—Lt. Col. Hulen Stogner, assistant military attache at the United States embassy here, was shot and killed at his home last night by a Congolese.

Troops encircled the residential section of Leopoldville where Stogner lived. A Congolese worker was seized for questioning.

Castro Star Dimmed?

HAVANA (UPI)—Communist leader Carlos Rafael Rodriguez yesterday replaced Premier Fidel Castro as president of the all-powerful Cuban Agrarian Reform Institute.

Although the change was announced without fanfare by the cabinet in a brief statement published in the official press, it created a sensation.

Much of Castro's power has stemmed from the all-embracing authority vested in him as head of the Institute.

One of the top five in the Communist hierarchy in Cuba, Rodriguez has been an openly avowed Communist since the middle 1930s.

Cuba was formally ousted from the Organization of American States yesterday. The expulsion was originally ordered by the American foreign ministers at Punta del Este, Uruguay.

Varsity Budget Cut Could Be Crippling

A $330,000 cut in the requested 1962 operating budget for Victoria University may prove crippling during the crucial early stages of expansion on the Gordon Head campus, the Colonist learned yesterday.

Principal Dr. W. H. Hickman said the resulting lack of funds will force cancellation of several new academic courses as well as a decision not to hire additional faculty members and purchase new equipment.

Victoria University Council, following a meeting this week, expressed "grave concern" over the budget cuts made by the provincial government.

Education Minister Leslie

Flu Wave Lays Low 10,000

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Schools were closed and more than 10,000 people, young and old, sniffled, sneezed, coughed or stayed abed Wednesday as the influenza epidemic strengthened its grip in this area.

Throughout this area some 62 elementary and high schools were closed. About one-third of the population of 37,000 here has been hit by the virus.

'Landlords Grab Pension Boost'

NANAIMO (CP)—President Joe Sutton of Nanaimo Old Age Pensioners Association said Wednesday he is wiring a protest to Prime Minister Diefenbaker over home rental increases that followed in the wake of Ottawa's announcement of old age pension hikes.

"Benefit from the pension increase is being wiped out before we even receive it," Mr. Sutton said. "The action of some landlords who have already raised rents means that other things will also go up and our little pension boost will disappear."

Planes Buzzed

Red Jets Sweep Air Lane

BERLIN (Reuters)—Soviet fighters swept near Allied planes in Berlin's vital air corridors Wednesday after Russia failed again to win Western agreement to block off part of the lanes for Soviet military flights.

One of the planes involved was a light RAF transport aircraft carrying Sir Christopher Steel, Britain's ambassador to West Germany.

Wednesday marked the fourth time in a week the Soviet controller at the Berlin air safety centre had informed the three Western controllers he wanted to reserve space in the air corridors below certain heights and between certain times for Soviet military flights. Each request was rejected.

The captain of a Pan American airliner flying to Berlin said he saw a Soviet jet fighter close behind a British European Airways Viscount, which was going in the opposite direction. The British captain said later he had not noticed the jet.

Bonner, Fulton To Meet

Power problems and Doudhobor affairs head the list of topics to be discussed in Ottawa Friday between Attorney-General Robert Bonner and Justice Minister David Fulton.

Premier Bennett advised the legislature yesterday that Mr. Bonner had gone East to discuss the Doudhobor problem following the wave of terrorism in the Kootenays.

But observers believe that the long-simmering Ottawa-B.C. fight over power development in the province will be uppermost in the minds of the two legal officials.

The federal and provincial authorities have not had a face-to-face meeting on the power issue since May of last year.

They're Reliving History

Speed-Up Bid

Extra Road To Ferries Demanded

A second Patricia Bay Highway for through traffic to the B.C. government ferry terminal at Swartz Bay was called for yesterday by John Tisdalle (SC—Saanich).

The present highway, he added, should be used by "domestic" traffic to and from points along the road while the new through-road could perhaps run parallel to it.

FASTER TRAVEL

"I hope the minister of highways will view with urgency something along these lines," stated Mr. Tisdalle, speaking in the budget debate. "The new highway could perhaps tie into the Blanshard Street extension."

Such a through highway, he said, would allow traffic going to and coming from the ferry terminal to travel quickly.

ONLY TWO

The member was critical of the fact that the Patricia Bay Highway relocation—which was made necessary by extension of airport runways—was two lanes only.

"It should have been four," he said. "No one can pass the buses and trucks coming off the ferries once they get on the road. Four lanes would allow a passing lane on either side of the road. I trust the minister will facilitate this at the earliest convenience."

TERROR WAVE HITS ALGERIA

Vendetta Takes Big Toll

ORAN, Algeria (Reuters)—At least 33 persons were killed and 86 injured in Algeria Wednesday as the blood-soaked territory suffered through one of the most violent days of the year.

The death toll was the highest in Algeria since Jan. 3, when 38 were killed.

ORAN ROCKED

Communal violence raged through the streets of Oran and Algiers, Algeria's two chief cities, with the Moslem and European communities locked in a bloody vendetta.

Forty-four plastic bomb explosions rocked the Moslem quarter of Oran and sparked a chain of terror that claimed at least 23 lives.

HOUSES LEVELLED

The explosions boomed through the Moslem suburb of Lamur as dawn broke, leveling newly-built small houses and setting fires that blazed uncontrolled through the day.

Rioting Moslems forced back policemen and firemen attempting to deal with the damage and poured into the European quarters, sacking and burning stores and stoning cars.

GENERAL'S SON DEAD

Nine rioters died and eight were wounded in one clash with French security forces during which a French army lieutenant was killed.

He was Lieut. Philippe Jacquot, son of Gen. Pierre Jacquot, commander-in-chief of NATO allied forces for central Europe.

BULLETS SPRAYED

In Algiers, an outbreak of Moslem-European terror was touched off when a car drove at high speed through one of the main streets of the Belcourt suburb, spraying machine-gun bullets from a window.

The attack was followed by the murder of two Europeans in Belcourt, a mixed Moslem-European suburb. The Europeans were shot by a Moslem gunman.

MOSLEMS ATTACKED

Word of the murder brought Europeans pouring from their houses.

They rampaged through the streets, attacking Moslems indiscriminately.

The demonstrations took place as an Algeria-wide strike of European electricity and gas workers hit France's North African territory. The strike marked the funeral in Algiers of a utility worker killed by a Moslem gunman Monday.

Nikita Told:

Summit Depends On Talks

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan told Soviet Premier Khrushchev Wednesday they will be willing to meet him at Geneva after the disarmament conference makes some progress.

Their messages, delivered in Moscow by the American and British ambassadors, brought to the verge of certainty the prospect of a summit meeting by the Big Three—and perhaps other heads of government—within the next few months.

TURNDOWN

Strictly speaking, the Kennedy-Macmillan reply was a turndown of Khrushchev's Feb. 10 proposal that government heads themselves attend at the start of the 18-nation general disarmament conference opening in Geneva March 14.

In Moscow, diplomatic quarters expected Khrushchev to attend the conference opening despite the Kennedy-Macmillan turndown.

BEST WAY

The Western chiefs stuck to their original call for a Geneva conference launching by their foreign ministers as the best way to make progress on preliminary details.

But having made this point, Macmillan said, "I am not so much concerned with routine procedures and arguments as with results."

Kennedy said: "I do not mean to question the utility or perhaps even the necessity of a meeting of heads of government."

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the House of Commons yesterday that a reply has been prepared to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's call for a heads-of-government disarmament conference in Geneva next month.

Mr. Diefenbaker was expected to join President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Macmillan in rejecting the Soviet leader's call.

Now Russians Try To Out-Do Scots

LONDON (Reuters)—The Soviet Union laid claim Wednesday to not one but two "Loch Ness monsters." Moscow radio said the first monster was seen by Soviet geologists in a lake 3,500 feet above sea level in eastern Siberia.

They claimed the monster had a head more than six feet in size and a 30-foot-long body that had something like a fin on it.

The second monster was said to have been seen by a party of geographers in a lake in the mountains on the border of Soviet Central Asia and China.

Looking like a log moving through the water "very rapidly," the scientists said the part above the water seemed to have a tail.
